Council Shifts 10 Workers From Street Jobs

Moves To Get Sewer Cleaned

Kyle Calls It 'Correction'

In the wake of a dispute between city council and Street Supt. E. W. Davis over the cleaning of storm sewers, council last night shifted 10 workers from the street to the sewer department.

While councilman declined to say in so many words that the action was an outgrowth of the tiff with Davis, the action admittedly was aimed at getting storm sewers cleaned.

Davis two weeks ago defied a council order to clean the sewer at the Park avenue east subway, asserting that he didn't take his orders from council.

Transferred were a foreman, two truckdrivers and seven class A laborers, who were taken from the street department and placed under the supervision of the sanitary engineer.

Councilman-at-Large George B. Kyle, who heads the sewer committee, introduced the amendment. Kyle said the purpose of the amendment was to correct the original ordinance which put the men in the street department.

Kyle said the original ordinance should have placed the men in the sanitation department.

Kyle introduced the previous resolution which ordered the street department to clean the sewer at the subway.

Only two weeks ago, Davis refused to clean out the storm sewer from Park avenue east subway to the Rocky Fork creek as ordered by council resolution.

"I refuse to clean any sewer by council order," Davis said. He added his department had neither the men nor money to do the job.

Asked if the dispute had brought about the amendment, Kyle said it "wasn't so much that." The purpose, he said, was to correct the original legislation.

As street department employes, the men worked on both streets and storm sewers. In their new jobs they will work on both storm and sanitary sewers.

Tire Labor Cut Looms

Mansfield Tire and Rubber company officials have notified union workers at the plant to decide between a shorter working week or a lay-off of approximately 200 employes.

The "production adjustment," according to company officials, requires either a lay-off of the 200 workers or operations on a four-day week for four weeks of a nine-week period, beginning March 4 and ending April 29.

Desmond Walker, president of Local 71, URWA-CIO, at the Mansfield Tire, said a special meeting of the membership, to decide the issue, has been called for 10 a. m. Saturday at John Simpson auditorium. Walker said the meeting has been called to review the report on production schedules for the next two months and for a discussion on general economic conditions as they apply to the union membership.

Walker added the company "wants to cut off 1,000 tires a day." This was not confirmed by the company.

Company officials said the four-day week would be followed on alternate weeks with operations on the other five weeks on a five-day a week schedule.

According to the union contract with the company, employes may decide whether to take a cut-back in their work week or a layoff.

Finds Cheap Way to Cross The Country

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Somebody—and the San Francisco Municipal railway would like to know who—made a cross-country trip on one of the railway's new buses. Didn't pay his fare, either.

It wasn't much of a trick. The bus was on a railroad flat car, being shipped here from Kent, Ohio.

The non-paying passenger converted rear seats into a bed and took his meals aboard with him. Railway officials figured he'd run up a bill of $25 for the 2500-mile trip at the local bus rates, but he vanished without paying.

Chief OK's DAV Club Bingo Game

Finds Part of Funds Will Go to Charity

Chief of Police Jesse J. Schwab said today that Disabled American Veterans Chapter 112 will be permitted to operate its bingo game in the new Frankel building.

The chief's announcement came after several days investigation of the organization to determine whether proceeds from the game would be used for charity as required by law.

He said his department would continue to investigate the operation of the game, as it would if any other organization was conducting the game.

DAV is planning to hold its grand opening Friday, March 4. It was postponed from last Friday.

The DAV made the following statement to the News-Journal today:

"It has been agreed by members of the DAV Chapter 112, that all money received from bingo games shall be divided as follows:

Twenty per cent of the net profit shall go to the State Department DAV Headquarters, Columbus, for rehabilitation work for all members and veterans of the state of Ohio.

"Expenses, including chair rental, materials, equipment and rent, will be paid from the receipts.

"The remainder of the money will be put in the treasury of the DAV Chapter 112 for aid to the worthy war veterans, their wives and children, widows and orphans, or any needy or charitable organization approved by members of the DAV Chapter 112 Welfare committee."

Claims He'll Go 175 Miles On One Gallon

OTTAWA —(U.P.)— Paul Emile Desrochers, a garage mechanic, said today he is ready to prove he can drive any car 175 miles on one gallon of gasoline.

The secret lies in a carburetor he has worked on for 15 years.

"For the last month I've been getting 175 miles consistently," he said.

Desrochers held a preliminary test earlier this week, with two newspaper men present. They said he drained the tank dry and then poured in one quart of gasoline.

Then he drove the reporters 44 miles and still had a cupful of gasoline left. Anyhow, that's their story.

Road Change Approved

State Now Must Act on Route 545

Re-routing of State Route 545 to avoid a heavy industrial section of Mansfield was approved last night by city council.

A certified copy of the ordinance will be forwarded to the State Director of Highways.

The ordinance proposed by Fred Miller, Fifth ward councilman, asked that State Route 545 be altered to proceed through Mansfield south on Wayne street to the intersection of Orange street, west on Orange street to Sixth street, west on Sixth street to north Park street, thence continuing on its present established route.

The ordinance states it is desirable to reduce the flow of traffic through the industrial district and that the highway in its present location is subjected to numerous periods of traffic congestion.

Council also approved an ordinance to provide $7,286 from the general fund for an additional contribution from the city in full settlement of right-of-way claims for the relocation of State Route 13 around the east side of Mansfield airport.

Ask Change In Pay Days

A petition signed by nearly 100 workers requesting that they receive their pay every other Saturday instead of twice monthly was presented to city council at its meeting Wednesday night.

The petition was referred to the council salary committee for its consideration.

The petition, signed by members of the city's street, park, garbage, sewer repair, and water departments, said the present practice of paying salaries semi-monthly imposes a hardship on workers in the lower income group.

Enforcement Agent Dismissed

Slots 'Non-Existent'; Vice Drive Launched

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The man whose direct responsibility it is to enforce the liquor laws of Ohio said today that as far as he knows, there isn't a single slot machine operating in a licensed bar in Ohio.

State Liquor Enforcement Chief Anthony J. Rutkowski said each of his nine district enforcement heads had reported within the past week, that there were no one-armed bandits operating in licensed taverns in their respective territories.

Basing his statement on these reports, Rutkowski said:

"To the best of my knowledge, there are no slots in any licensed liquor spots in the state."

Rutkowski said all the names on the state's list of persons who paid federal taxes on coin operated devices had been checked under the department's policy of continuous inspection.

★

ALLIANCE—(AP)—The State Liquor department, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the president of the town's college, among others, put the heat on the city administration today to rid Alliance of bootlegging, gambling and commercialized vice.

Yesterday Rutkowski disclosed his agents were investigating and that he had removed Howard E. Klinker as agent in charge of enforcement in the Canton district, which includes Alliance.

Then last night Oscar L. Fleckner, director of the liquor department, issued a statement backing allegations made by the newspapers reporters.

"Here we find bootlegging, commercialized vice, gambling and speakeasies operating in full view of the public and without concern for the good of the community," Fleckner said.

His statement stressed that "the primary responsibility rests upon local law enforcement officials."

HALIFAX, N. S.—(AP)—Seven persons died in their beds and three others were injured—one critically—here early today when a flash fire roared through a double two-story tenement on southend Smith street.

Relax Buying Curbs

Rent Control Easing Hinted

(Compiled From Wire Services)

WASHINGTON—Many lawmakers welcomed as a boon to business a government order permitting smaller monthly installments on a list of items ranging from cook stoves to automobiles.

The Federal Reserve board's action also was greeted warmly by the automobile industry, which saw in the move a possible lift to lagging car sales.

However, Edgar Kaiser, general manager of the Kaiser-Frazer corporation, said, "It is not enough," and a similar sentiment was expressed by Rep. Patman (D-Tex.), who has been demanding an extensive easing of curbs on credit buying.

The order was issued last night on the heels of its report that installment credit outstanding had dropped in January for the first time in three years. The order is effective Monday. It affects these consumer items now under "anti-inflation" controls:

Cook stoves, dishwashers, ironers, refrigerators, washing machines, automobiles, air conditioners, radio and television sets, phonographs, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, furniture and rugs.

EXTENDS TIME

This is what the Reserve Board order does:

1. Reduces the down payment for all controlled items, except automobiles, to 15 per cent, from the present 20 per cent.

2. Allows 21 months to pay off the balance due after the cash payment on all items.

Meanwhile the administration was reported ready today to end at least one-third of the nation's rent controls.

Termination would be contingent, however, upon the administration receiving from Congress authority to restore controls in the areas "in the event they get out of control."

Grim Search Completed

Charred Remains Found In Ruins

GAMBIER — (INS) — A day's search of the charred ruins of Kenyon college dormitory netted today grim evidence of the fate of the six students believed lost in the blaze.

College officials reported the discovery of 35 or 40 bits of human bones and some teeth. President Gordon K. Chalmers said any identification will have to wait until the approval of the relatives of the six ill-fated students.

Three other students died as a result of injuries in the fire. One youth was killed instantly when he jumped from a third story window and two others died in a hospital.

Jailed Again

CANTON —(AP)— Bobbie Dale Reynolds, 25, of Canton, who was freed from the Mansfield reformatory Jan. 26 under a writ of habeas corpus, was in trouble with the law again today.

He and his brother, Harold P. Reynolds jr., 27, were arrested in Massillon about two hours after a 67-year-old service station attendant was beaten and robbed of $57 by three unarmed bandits.

They were arrested in a raid on a "poker party" at which two Massillon men and a Massillon woman were arrested on charges of permitting gambling, police reported.

SUSPECT TRICKED

While the brothers were being returned to Canton patrolmen tricked them into revealing the name of the third suspect in the robbery. Andrew Popa, 25, of Canton, was then arrested at his home.

All three were arraigned on unarmed robbery charge in municipal court here this morning. Bobbie Dale and Popa pleaded guilty and were bound over to the grand jury. Harold Reynolds pleaded innocent and preliminary hearing was set tentatively for March 12.

Reynolds was released from the reformatory after his mother had filed a writ of habeas corpus, contending he was incompetent. Evidence introduced showed he was a war veteran who had been in several government hospitals for mental illness.

He had originally been sentenced to the reformatory for a one to 15 year term on charges of assault with intent to rob. The court ruled at the time of the hearing that he was without legal capacity to enter his plea of guilty.

12 Perish In Flaming House

MUSKEGON, Mich. — (AP) — Twelve persons were reported burned to death today in a fire that swept a home in the little town of Lakewood, 12 miles north of here.

Fire Chief Fred Vejr of the community's volunteer department said 14 persons were in the home when the flames struck.

"Twelve of them are dead," he said.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Markin said he had counted at least eight bodies in the ruins.

Johnson To Take New Job

White House Hints Action

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The long-anticipated retirement of Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal from the cabinet is expected to be announced this afternoon by President Truman.

Official quarters indicated that Forrestal will be succeeded by Louis A. Johnson, of West Virginia, former assistant secretary of war.

White House sources indicated that the announcement will be made by the President at his news conference this afternoon.

The White House officially, however, would make no comment on reports of the impending cabinet change this morning.

ACTION EXPECTED

Forrestal's resignation has been anticipated ever since the election last November. Shortly after Mr. Truman was re-elected the secretary said after a White House conference that he did not expect to remain in the cabinet very much longer.

There have been reports that Forrestal would take a high post with the Texas Oil company, when he returns to private life.

Johnson's name is the only one mentioned as Forrestal's successor.

The 58-year-old Johnson had loomed as a new cabinet officer since Mr. Truman's reelection. He was chairman of the Democratic finance committee which raised one and a half million dollars for the President's campaign.

Forrestal submitted his resignation to President Truman shortly after the election and it has been lying on the chief executive's desk.

Forrestal, 57, was president of Dillon, Reed & Company, New York investment bankers, when President Roosevelt named him undersecretary of the navy in 1940.

Johnson resides in Clarksburg, W. Va., and is a well-to-do lawyer and business man.

Royall, 54, was appointed undersecretary of war in November 1945 and made secretary of war in July 1947. He was made army secretary under the unification plan.

Urges Rural Phone Probe

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Sen. Ralph A. Winter (R.-Medina) called today for a searching investigation of "inadequate" telephone service in rural Ohio.

He drafted a Senate-House resolution for a ten-member commission to conduct the probe. The commission would have power to subpoena witnesses and records.

The demand stemmed from frequent complaints in recent years of high rates, poor service and inability of many rural and suburban residents to get phones, Winter explained.

"In many cases the rates charged for telephone service are greatly in excess of the reasonable value of the service rendered," the resolution read.

"In certain cases excessive dividends have been paid at the expense of adequate maintenance" by companies serving rural areas, it added.

Fire Chooses Logical Spot

CINCINNATI —(U.P.)— Firemen were called twice to put out a fire in a fire extinguisher plant here.

The fire broke out after working hours in the Phister Manufacturing company paint last night, so employes did not get a chance to try out their own product. A sprinkler system did the work.

Six hours later, firemen were called back when debris began burning again.

Trades Vestments For Shovel

CIO Union Strikes; Catholic Cardinal Digs Graves

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Francis Cardinal Spellman, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, laid aside his vestments today to help dig graves at Calvary cemetery where a seven-weeks old strike has held up the burial of 1,020 bodies.

The cardinal, undaunted by taunts of "strike breaker" from officers of the United Cemetery Workers (CIO), said he would lead 100 seminary students through the picket lines to assist him with the task.

"This is the most important work I've had in my 10 years in New York," he said. "We'll do the best we can."

Spellman declared that the Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers of America, with which the UCW is affiliated, is a "well-known communist dominated union" and that he believed the strikers were misled. The strike, he said, was a "moral issue."

Some 250 members of the union, gravediggers, gardeners, mechanics and chauffeurs went on strike at the Calvary cemetery, Maspeth, N. Y., on Jan. 13. They demanded that their six-day work week be reduced to five days for the same pay—$59.40. Negotiations bogged down when the church refused to offer more than a 30 cents a day raise.

Cardinal Spellman said he came to the decision to personally aid in the burials when the union last night refused to disaffiliate from the FTAWA.

"I can no longer tolerate or deal with the union representatives," Spellman said.

Joseph Manning, president of the local, said the communist issue was a "red herring."

"There isn't any communistic policy, personnel or program within our local," Manning said. "The cardinal's action is high-handed and suggestive of the tactics used by anti-union employers 10 years ago."

Spellman suspended classes at St. Joseph's seminary, releasing all physically able seminarians to assist "in the corporal work of mercy of burying the dead."

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

(Oregon University)
By TRACEY CROMWELL DUDLEY

What's in a name? That depends . . .

Let's take the name Muhammadan, for example.

You have probably often used that word and never thought anything about it—but Muslims themselves do not call themselves Muhammadans!

Obviously an important story is involved. It is not just a case of somebody's desiring to be different or fancy or fussy.

Muhammadan refers to the Arabian Prophet, Muhammad. As applied to the man himself, the adjective is correct and acceptable. The trouble, however, is that most of us do not stop there. We go on to apply the term to the religion taught by this man! . . .

In other words, did Muhammad teach Muhammadanism? As shocking as it may seem, the answer is not a simple, clear "Yes." . . . What a scholar might, for technical purposes, term Muhammadanism could represent but a small part of the Message of Muhammad! . . . If Muhammad had been the first to teach his faith, then it might be half-way correct to call it Muhammadanism. But, as the Hebrew Scriptures ("The Old Testament") bear witness, this religion goes back far beyond the days of Muhammad himself—who was the last of the whole long line of great prophets to flourish among the Hebrews and their Arabian cousins.

The only word that is rich, full, and broad enough to describe this ancient faith is the Arabic term, Islam. Moreover, whereas Muhammadanism only names something (and is rarely used altogether correctly), Islam not only names but also describes this Religion of the Prophets.

Islam summarises this whole religion in three ways. First, it refers to the spiritual experience underlying the faith, for Islam is the Arabic word that describes the process or way of approach to God taught by it. Secondly, it describes the way of life of the believer—the whole body of truths upon which his faith and practice are based. Thirdly, it has the meaning of "peace" — "the peace of God which passeth all understanding" — that all-inclusive blessing that is the most precious gift of God to men.

Let us consider each of these meanings of the name Islam more fully to see how it represents so appropriate a description of the Scriptural teachings attributed to Moses, Jesus, and the host of lesser prophets to appear in ancient Israel.

The Way and the Truth and the Life

The name of Islam is derived from an Arabic root literally meaning "to feel perfectly safe, to be absolutely tranquil"; thus, by implication, "to be at perfect peace with oneself and the rest of the world by having done one's duty, by having paid up one's dues." By extension, the following meanings are derived:

First, Islam as a way of approach to Deity. This is the process by which one "pays up his dues" and approaches a sense of well-being. This is the spiritual experience through which one comes into proper relationship with God — free, spontaneous and with the whole will and judgment of God.

This is the process by which one achieves that state of harmony with the Divine that is displayed all about one in the world of nature—it is getting the self into tune with Creation itself. It is the acceptance of the Divine will and judgment for the individual and for humanity. "Not my will, but Thine, be done."

This is the experience described as becoming spiritually "as a little child" in order that one may "enter the Kingdom of God." It is "the second birth"—the birth of the spiritual man.

It is not a fatalistic acceptance of what is, but an active, vital, creative resignation to that which is to be. It is the merging of the individual with the Divine purposiveness. It is the submission of the spirit that enables the God-disciplined person to strive in the path of Allah—to live and work in accordance with the very nature of the world and the purposes of human life, as these truths are disclosed to us through revelation, nature, and history.

Secondly, Islam as a body of truth Divinely revealed. As the name of the faith that has these teachings as its heart, Islam describes the whole body of belief and practice to which its followers give allegiance.

Thirdly, Islam as a way of God-integrated life. In the sense of "peace," Islam describes the sense of happiness, security, and well-being that results from a harmonious relationship with God. One feels confident that he is working with the forces underlying the world and life itself, that one is moving with the future as it is being unfolded in the present. This is more than self-integration: this is the integration of the individual with the whole stream of life of which he is a part. Only the word "peace" can describe this state: it is the peace of God.

Thus we see that the word Islam describes the religion taught by Muhammad in a rich, full way. In fact, we have already made clear the monumental simplicity of this faith, as it is revealed in its structure, which we have just analysed. The secret of the power—like the greatness—of the Religion of the Prophets lies in its simplicity, directness, clarity. It moves men because it speaks to their condition and gives results.

In short, what is in the name Islam? A description of a faith? Yes, but much more than just that. The name Islam is more correctly a programme of action—a guide to vital spiritual life. For the true seeker, it can become a simple, clear chart of the way to true happiness and peace.

The Message and the Man

How did Muhammadanism come to be used as an equivalent term for Islam? Clearly it is a coined word composed, like such names as Confucianism and Zoroastrianism, from the proper name of the reputed founder of the religion.

Nevertheless, the term Muhammadanism is objectionable not so much for its essential meaninglessness and flatness as for its incompatibility with two very important teachings of Muhammad himself.

In the first place, Muhammad (the peace and blessings of God be on him!) would have been the first to object to such a term, for it refers to, and emphasises, the man rather than his message. And, as highly as they respect his memory, Muslims do not ascribe divinity to the Prophet. In fact, one of the cardinal principles of their faith is that God must not be dishonoured by the attributing of Divine qualities to any human being, any more than the stature of a great man ought to be lessened through a belief that he was not subject to the same trials and temptations as other mortals . . For Muslims, the greatest honour is bestowed upon Muhammad's memory when a person truly believes that he was, par excellence, the Messenger and Prophet of God . Muhammad himself indicated the term by which he should be known when he referred to himself as a Muslim.

(A Moslem—more correctly, Muslim—is "one who submits himself entirely to God." The term is parallel to the word Islam in derivation, meaning, and usage.)

In the second place, by calling himself a Muslim, Muhammad was able to emphasise the historical background of Islam as the Religion of the Prophets . . Muhammad was not the founder of Islam. He re-established it, on the one hand. He made it complete in its fundamental teachings, on the other hand.

Islam is the soul-stirring Primitive Semitic Revelation described in the Book of Genesis. It antedates Judaism—the Mosaic Revelation — the founding of which, through the work of Moses, is described in the Books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. Islam was the religion of Abraham, Prophet-Patriarch and common ancestor of both of the main Semitic peoples, the Hebrews and the Arabs.

The Primitive Semitic and the Jewish Dispensations, however, were neither final nor complete in themselves. They were not meant to be; this is everywhere the testimony of the Sacred Writings of the Jews. The Primitive Semitic (or Islamic) Dispensation (Manifestation, Revelation) was carried to a higher plane of spirituality in the Mosaic, which followed it; but the latter was intended, not for mankind, but for one nation. And, as we shall see, both Moses and Jesus warned their hearers that another great prophet would follow them

The third and last of this series of Semitic Dispensations was given through the instrumentality of Muhammad. It finds its expression in Scripture in the Holy Qur"an, the so-called Bible of the Muslims. (Detailed supplementary material is also to be found in the collections of authentic Traditions concerning the sayings and doings of Muhammad himself.)

The Holy Qur"an (Koran) is the collection of the revelations given through Muhammad. It is the fundamental source of, and final authority for, Muslim belief and practice. It relates this third, Muhammadan, Revelation to the Primitive Semitic and to the Jewish, which preceded it. Its teachings represent the natural completion of those of the two earlier Dispensations.

If we are to understand the Hebrew Scriptures and the Holy Qur"an, we must distinguish carefully between these three stages or Dispensations in the history of the Religion of the Prophets. We must learn the purpose and the function of each for the Semitic peoples themselves. We must see each in relation to the whole of humanity—for these were given to the Semites both as mercies from God and as trusts for all of mankind . It is this universal significance of each of them that gives, for mankind at large, a more-than-historical interest and value to the Hebrew and the Arabic Scriptures. Such knowledge, moreover, is basic for an insight into the Divine Plan for mankind as it is revealed in human history.

From Abraham Through Moses to Muhammad.

The outstanding prophet of the first, or Primitive Semitic, Revelation is Abraham (peace be on him!) A remarkably clear picture of this man, so well described as "the Friend of God," may be obtained from the details about his personality and his time given in the Hebrew Scriptures and the Holy Qur"an . .As the reward for his faithfulness, Abraham was allowed to become the founder of two great peoples dedicated to the trust of spiritual leadership of humanity. From his son Isaac are descended the Hebrews; from Ishmael, his first-born, the Arabs. . . .Abraham is both the model of this Dispensation and the common ancestor of the two nations through whom the knowledge of the One God was given to the world.

The founder of the second, or Hebrew, Revelation is Moses (peace be on him!). He it was who formed the tribes descended from Abraham through his son Isaac into a nation and who brought this new people into a covenant relationship with the Lord. . . .This new nation, Israel, was designed to be a source of many outstanding spiritual pioneers, unto God "a kingdom of priests and an holy nation" (Exodus 19:6). Its purpose was to preserve the knowledge of the True God and to be His witness on earth. "Ye are My witnesses, saith the Lord, and My servant whom I have chosen. . . . I, even I, am the Lord; and beside Me there is no saviour. . . Therefore ye are My witnesses, saith the Lord, and I am God" (Isaiah 43:10-12)...The Hebrew (or Mosaic) Law was designed to supplement the Covenant of Sinai between God and the Children of Israel. It ordered their life in conformity with Godly practices, separated them from foreign peoples, and gave scope to their own strong psychological distinctiveness. It was never intended for non-Israelites. Its basis did not lie in a natural relationship between God and Man but in the covenant relationship between God and Israel. Israel was set apart to be God's witness, not His missionary.

The Prophet of the final Revelation is Muhammad (the peace and blessings of God be on him!) He it was who brought the knowledge of God to the descendants of Abraham through his first-born son, Ishmael.

...Almost twenty centuries previously Moses had announced that a prophet of his own stature would arise among the Arabs, the brethren of Israel, and had instructed the Hebrews to hearken to him. "A prophet will the Lord thy God raise up unto thee, from the midst of thee, of they brethren, like unto me; unto him you shall hearken" (Deuteronomy 18:15). In order to emphasise the prophecy, Moses at once gives a direct quotation of the words of the Lord: "I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren like unto thee; and I will put My words in his mouth and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him" (18:18). And, as the Jews proclaim in the Seventh Article of the "Thirteen Principles of the Faith" formulated by Maimonides—"I believe with perfect faith that . . Moses, our teacher...was the chief of the prophets, both of those that preceded and of those that followed him"—this prophecy has never been applied by the Jews to one of their own nation.

...As Moses, in opening the Hebrew Dispensation, had proclaimed the advent of a prophet among the Arabs; so Jesus, at the close of this Dispensation, announced the coming of a prophet who was to seal the prophetic line by guiding men into all truth. "And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever" (John 14:16). "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will show you things to come. He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall show it unto you" (John 16:14—14) Indeed, in agreement with the resemblance between the meaning of the Greek word "Paraclete" and that of the Arabic name "Ahmad" (which is a form of the name "Muhammad"), we read the following in the Holy Qur"an: " Jesus, the son of Mary, said: O children of Israel! surely I am the messenger of God to you, confirming that which is before me of the Torah and giving the good news of a messenger who will come after me, his name being Ahmad." (61:6.)

Thus we see that the name Islam carries with it deep, rich, historical associations. It recalls the long history of Semitic prophecy and suggests the continuity in fundamental teachings represented in this long story. It associates the Prophet of Arabia with his many illustrious predecessors, to their honour and to his. It emphasises the great antiquity of the religion of which Muhammad (the peace and blessings of God be on him!) was the last and the greatest teacher.

In its simple way, it stresses the teachings of the Holy Qur"an as a continuation of those of the early Semitic prophets and as a development of those of the spiritual leaders of the ancient Hebrews.

Giving the Jews' Treasure to The World

How, then, did the Prophet develop the teachings of the Jews?

First, he presented the heart and core of Judaism—the underlying essentials—apart from later accretions and emphases. He rediscovered the original purity and simplicity of Judaism, the timeless essentials that Moses had attempted to preserve through his leadership in the establishment of the Hebrew religion.

Secondly, he universalised the content of the teachings of the Jews by cutting out those that are particularistic — of value, meaning, and significance for the Jews only—and by highlighting those of universal significance.

Thirdly, he preached a universal teaching of his message. He was not only the last of the Semitic prophets: he was also the first and only one to proclaim a message for non-Semitic peoples, for all of mankind.)thus it is that contemptuous reference to non-Semites are so noticeably absent in the Holy Qur"an. Compare with Matthew 7:6, 15:24; and Mark 7:25-30.)

Whereas the Hebrews had considered themselves "the salt of the earth" (Matt. 5:13) and "the light of the world" (5:14), the Arabs were given the message of Islam as a missionary trust as well as a mercy from God. ("And We have not sent thee (O Muhammad!) save as a mercy to (all) the nations" (21:107). This, and similar Qur'anic statements, should be compared with the attitude of Jesus as expressed, for example, in the Sermon on the Mount. The Jewish attitude toward missionary activities finds an excellent expression, as well as a complete endorsement, on the part of Jesus in Matthew 5:15-16. Similarly, the Jewish attitude towards the Mosaic Law is treated in a Jewish-Orthodox fashion in Matthew 5:17-19. In fact, the condemnation of the Pharisees in the next verse is especially interesting in view of the fact that this school was marked by its missionary zeal!)

As Moses had predicted, a Prophet "like unto him" arose among the Arabs almost twenty centuries after his own day. To this Prophet was given the task of preaching the heart-teachings of the Hebrew religion to humanity—of giving the Jews' treasure to all men—as a result of this process of simplification and universalisation. As Moses had saved the message of Islam for mankind by giving it a national (Hebrew) form, so Muhammad (the peace and blessings of God be on him!) made it the common property of humanity by entrusting it to his fellow Arabs. Thus was Moses vindicated by the Prophet "like unto him" "from the midst of the brethren" of the Children of Israel.

RE-ESTABLISHING THE THE ORIGINAL RELIGION OF MANKIND

How, then, did the Prophet Muhammad continue the Islam of ancient days?

First, he re-established it. He became its most recent teacher as well as its formost exponent. His own spiritual experience reproduced that of his people: there can be no other explanation of the close relationship between his teachings and the Semitic type of spiritual experience. Equally profound is the psychological fact that his experience was complete in its pattern: thus was he able to avoid the over-and under-emphasis of the Jewish teachings of his day. This is the explanation of the fact that Islam, as expounded in the Holy Qur'an. is a full complete faith—which is not usually true of a religion. As we have seen above in our analysis of the name Islam as a summary of the whole religion, the structure of this faith is complete while at the same time monumentally simple and clear. In all three categories—as way, as truth, and as life—it impresses ordinary mortals with its helpful simplicity as much as it does profound thinkers with its phenomenal intuitions.

The completeness of the religion of the Holy Qur"an must be recognised as the counterpart of the completeness of the spiritual experience of the Prophet himself. It was thus inevitable that he should reconstruct the Islam of antiquity to be witnessed both in the ancient writings of the Jews and in the traditions and the subconscious mind of the Arabian nation. A person who has had the experience for himself will readily recognize the authenticity of the historical narratives embodied in the Qur"an. Their psychological truthfulness supports the validity of the ancient form of Islam described in both the Hebrew and the Arabic Scriptures. Moreover, the Prophet who could thus reconstruct this partial revelation of antiquity would alone be able to make this faith complete and perfect in its principles.

Secondly, he made it complete in its fundamental teachings. He made it suitable for a complex society, as Primitive Islam had been essentially a religion designed for a nomadic one and was, in fact, a reaction historically to the evils of a wealth-and-power civilisation far to the east of Arabia. In this way, the Prophet laid the foundation for the magnificent Arabic civilisation that captivated the minds and the hearts, as well as the souls of cultivated peoples in the centuries immediately following his own lifetime. One of the primary causes of this flowering of human genius lies in the fact that the religion of the Holy Qur"an teaches a simple, yet complete, view of life that lends itself readily to systematic, scientific, disciplined cultural expression. It is no exaggeration to say that the Prophet was a great philosopher or a brilliant lawyer in the sense that his work laid the foundations of the whole cultural pattern that emerged in the Muslim world and that provided the bridge between the Ancient Grecian civilisation and that of the modern period in the North and West of Europe. Moreover, the scientific research of our own day has not shaken the fundamental beliefs and basic tenets of the pure Qur"anic Islam, that understanding of, and emphasis on, the twin principles of unity and universality in nature and in life upon the basis of which the world culture of the future can alone be successfully established. To the degree that our age is groping for world-mindedness, it is recognising, even though unconsciously, that spirit of unity-universality that permeates the Islam of the Holy Qur"an.

Even in the strivings of secular-minded modern-minded persons seeking to save themselves from the punishments of their own narrow- and self-mindedness by grasping at rays of insubstantial "one-world" dreams, the Muslim sees a tribute to the work of the Prophet in completing and perfecting Islam. "This day have I made perfect for you your religion, and completed My blessings upon you, and chosen for you Islam as a religion" (Holy Qur"an 5:3).

By restoring and completing Islam, Muhammad (the Peace and blessings of God be on him!) became "the seal of the prophets" in history as well as in theology. By re-establishing the original religion of mankind, he established the final religion of mankind.

And so the ancient promise to Abraham was fulfilled: "And i thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed..." (Genesis 22:18).

It Depends on You

The only word that is rich, full, and broad enough to describe the Religion of the Prophets is the Arabic term, Islam. Fortunate, indeed, is the faith to have such a deeply significant name, for all the truths of Islam have been derived from the experience of highly spiritual men who have found life more abundant through "Islam" (that is, through the resignation of their own wills to the will and judgment of God).

Islam is a prophet's cry, challenging each one of us to submit himself to the Absolute and to strive in His path—the way leading to the joy, happiness, and peace with which God blesses those who live in conformity with the beauty of life itself. It defies the short-sighted and the self-seeking by insisting that that alone is constructive, lasting, fully satisfying, and truly meaningful which is in harmony with the purposeful, law-regulated character of nature and with the nature, needs and necessities of man. "The nature made by God in which He had made all men—that is the right religion" (30:30).

Islam satisfied the need of the creature for integration in the larger pattern of life itself: it knows that the personality can find the fullest development and the richest expression only through such God-integration. It recognises the physical, intellectual, and spiritual longings of mankind as superbly beautiful and supremely meaningful as they lead to legitimate individual and social development and expression; but it warns and rewarns that they are the source of the greatest danger to mankind if they are allowed to be turned to unnatural, perverted ends by rebellious persons or organizations. It avoids the false position, the blind end, of all those who try to persuade themselves that humanity alone is a sufficient interest and that "humanism" is a satisfying faith, for it knows that humanity is integrally a part of nature herself and cannot be viewed reasonably apart from the rest of God's creation. It does not join in the hunt of all sorts of "liberals" and "cultists" for cure-alls and "easy ways out." It knows that the path is as difficult as the goal is sure.

"The good life"—the life of self-discovery and self-fulfillment—is not cheap. It is very costly, indeed, in terms of those habits and attitudes so dear to the natural man.

Only those who are willing to pay the price are allowed to travel the pathway of resignation leading to peace. "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matthew 7:13-14).

He who resigns himself to God and strives in His way follows in the footsteps of the prophets who went before him along the path to true happiness and peace.

For the Muslim, all this, and much more, is in the name Islam.

...What's in the name Islam for you?.. That depends on you.

The Boy Who Was Born To Change the World

By Cassim Isma'il Colin Evans

NAMING THE BABY

The Book from God (the Qur'an, which means "Reading," "Proclamation." "Preaching"), begins with the prayer that every Muslim says many times a day. This is contained in the first chapter called "The Opening." Now there are three words you repeat whenever you say this prayer; they may remind you of three important names. The prayer proper begins with the word "al-hamdu," that is to say, "the praise." Another grammatical form of the same word is "Muhammad," "the praised one." After declaring the praise of God, this prayer goes on to define the duty of man, His servant: "Thee do we serve," using the Arabic root-word 'abd, meaning to serve. It is this word which forms part of so many Muslim names. Abdullah—"Servant of God" is one of these. There is also another word which is not part of the actual text of this chapter of the Qur'an but is said at the end of the prayer to confirm what has been expressed: aamin, and is the same word as the Hebrew "amen," used in English. This word is derived from a root-word meaning "ture, faithful, reliable." From this self-same root-word comes the name Aamina, "the truthful woman."

'Abdullah—a man who serves God, and Aamina—a woman who is faithful and true, were the parents of Muhammad — the man who is praised. He was God's final messenger to all mankind (God's blessing be on him!). It is duty, piety, the service of our Creator, which makes truth, honesty or sincerity, fruitful and productive of real merit. When "Serving God" joins with "Truth," the result is the only kind of "praise and glory" that can have any value. Was it just by chance that "Praised" was the child of "Servant of God" and "Truth"? I hardly think one can call it "chance."

Everything that exists is part of one thing that makes all its parts fit together. Our ways of thinking and feeling, our minds, our bodies, the most distant stars, are all parts of the one thing. They are parts of the universe, which is an expression of the thoughts of God. "Surely Islam is the religion of God," says the Qur'an. For "Islam" means partly, the bringing of all into harmony, of everything into tune with everything else. It is complete and real peace that is not merely the fact of not fighting, but that is also the Divine awareness that everything fits properly into the whole scheme of things. One of the sayings reported from the boy we are discussing, when he had grown up to be "God's Messenger" (God's blessing be on him!) is that "a Muslim is one of whom nobody is afraid." In other words, a Muslim is one who is not at cross-purposes with any other being, but a harmonious part of the entire order of the universe. And, so long as a human being keeps "in tune" with God and the rest of God's creation, the things he says and does and thinks will fit in perfectly with the great truths that are only going to be known later on. This our own limited knowledge cannot see at the time. If we are really tune with the universe and its Creator, there must be a kind of influence that means more than we can guess and that makes it possible that names are the right names.

The coming of God's last-messenger to the whole world had been planned long, long before he was born. We may suppose that the parents and grandparents and ancestors from whom he was descended were part of that plan. God plans so that everything, including man himself, develops and progresses to the final state of perfection which is the aim of the great Plan. A Messenger of God must be in as complete harmony as is possible for the limitations of human nature — with God. We may suppose that this is prepared for in advance. We may assume that the parents from whom his personality and character are partly inherited will have been, in turn, through inheritance from their own ancestors and in other ways, gradually developed towards that harmony. It may not be too fanciful to imagine, then, that it was natural for minds in some degree of harmony with the entire scheme of God to give specially suitable names to the man and woman who were going to be Muhammad's parents, and then to Muhammad himself, even without quite knowing why.

When one of your friends, who has been brought up as a Hindu or a Christian or a Buddhist, becomes a Muslim, he will probably take an Arabic name, one that has been famous among Muslims. This gives him the idea of being a Muslim, and one of the great united brotherhood of Muslims. He does this knowing why he is doing it. But also just possibly, in such a moment of drawing nearer than ever before to a real understanding with God, he is, without knowing it, inspired to choose a name for which there will prove to be some extra reason, not yet known to him or those who chose his name for him.

And thus, perhaps, it happened, that the Prophet's mother was named Aamina—"Truth", and his father 'abdullah—"God's Servant", and himself Muhammad —"Praised" —the deserver of merit derived from Truth combined with the Service of God.

There is a story which may or may not be historically true. It is said that Muhammad's grandfather, the last really wealthy man of his tribe, which had once owned the well where God saved the life of Abraham's son Ishmael, made a vow to sacrifice a son if God gave him twelve sons. In those days of ignorance one did not know better. He thought what was dearest and nearest to him should be sacrificed by him. Thus when about to sacrifice his son, the story goes, a voice from Heaven forbade him. 'Abdullah grew up and married Aamina.

In a year about 1380 years ago, about the year 570 of the Christian calendar, which reckons from the birth of an earlier Messenger of God, Jesus (on whom be peace and God's blessing!), the King of Abyssinia sent a great army with elephants to attack Mecca. The Ka'ba, according to a legend that grew up later, was about to be destroyed by this army. It was a place hallowed by the memory of how Abraham there worshipped God. This is the same place which was defiled later by the worship of many false gods, but hallowed again when Muhammad, as God's messenger, destroyed the idols and made the Ka'ba the centre of Islam. The legend suggests that a miracle saved the Ka'ba from the 'Abyssinian army, and that an elephant knelt there in reverence. That year is called the Year of the Elephants.

And in that year, Aamina, widow now of 'Abdullah who had died with his son still unborn, gave birth to the "Boy who was to change the world." And he was given the name Muhammad.

Since then, the outward sign of harmony with God and His universe has been the declaration:

"I declare that there is none Divine but God; I declare that Muhammad is God's messenger."

War Urged on Pork Disease, Infecting Every Sixth Person

By ALBERT DEUTSCH

(EXCERPTS)

If you eat pork, as nearly all Americans in this greatest of pork-consuming nations do, you ought to get fighting mad about one of the most disgraceful food scandals in our history.

It's the fact that every sixth American is infected with trichinosis, a condition resulting from eating raw, undercooked, or inadequately processed pork that contains live trichinae—parasite worms that burrow into the victim's muscle tissue. While the vast majority of trichinae-infected human's suffer the disease in only mild or subclinical forms, trichinosis often produces painful and disabling symptoms and sometimes terminates fatally.

The shocking feature about this disease is that it is easily preventable by simple known methods. It is a national shame that the U. S. A., with all its resources, has been way behind many lesser countries which have successfully controlled trichinosis for decades. One health expert, Dr. M. C. Hall, after a survey showing an "amazingly high frequency of trichinosis" in Americans, concluded that "the United States has the greatest problem of trichinosis in the world."

PROHIBITED FOOD AND INTOXICATING LIQUOR

Tonight I think of the prohibitions of Islam—how few and how salutary! Wine—avoid it—cut it off—touch it not. Simplify your life by the clean sword-stroke cutting out the lurking possibility of evil. Who hath at any time forbidden good fresh grapes, God's mercy to man? But wine, wherein is evil, dally not therewith, saying, "So much is good but beyond that cometh evil." In the drinking of wine the discernment disappeareth easefully. Does not the fancied line between imagined good and evil recede ever with the drinker? Are not some less able to withstand than others? How then shall many, or even few, drink together without evil to some? Excellent indeed is the prohibition: "Drink not wine at all. Take not intoxicants at all." And of other things: "Do not eat pork. Do not eat the flesh of swine." It is not well known and agreed upon all sides that what a man feedeth on maketh him? If he eats much meat or little shall the body not respond accordingly, influencing the life and actions? Who can eat bad food healthfully, or unclean food cleanly? Or who can deny the filthiness of swine or the harmful nature of swine's flesh? Would anyone of intelligence lean over a pigsty in the early morning and then go indoors and enjoy a dish of swine flesh? And would not the thought of acquiring even a few of the propensities of swine horify the delicate damsel to whom beauty is such a valued possession? So I say, shall the habit of the ages still prevail in Europe and custom blind intelligent people to reality? Apparently, Jesus (on whom be peace!) thought swine a suitable habitation for devils. The eating of pork and bacon is not essential to human existance. It is simply a bad habit. Eat of the good things. God has provided.—(Mr. W. B. Pickard, B. A.)

NOTE

In the Bible we learn that those who eat pork and those who eat mice are in same class (Isa. 66: 17).

Dr. E. B. Foole on the Use of Pork

Dr. E. B. Folle of New York in his book "Disease—Its Causes, Prevention and Cure," says on pp. 56-59:

"One of the most common causes of blood impurities is the use of pork. It has been said that things were created for some wise purpose. This is undoubtedly true but hogs were never made to eat. We read that Christ used them to drown devils; they can never be appropriated to a more beneficient use. As an article of diet, pork exerts a most pernicious influence on the blood, overloading it with carbonic acid gas and filling it with serofula. The hog is not a healthy animal. From its birth it is an inveterate gormandizer and to satisfy its eternal cravings for food, everything in the field or gutter, however filthy, finds lodgement in its capacious stomach. It eats filth and wallows in its filth and is itself but a living mass of filth. When, therefore, it is remembered that all our limbs and organs have been picked up from our plates—that our bodies are made up of the things we have eaten—what pork-eater will felicitate himself with the reflection that, according to physiological teachings, he is physically, part hog . . "

"In the August, 1937, issue of 'Hygeia,' a publication of The American Medical Association, we learn that 'Swine are responsible for several human afflictions of considerable significance.' Among the various afflictions noted are trichinosis, tuberculosis, both the human and bovine types; undulant fever, the porcine type being especially virulent; anthrax; swine erysipelas, and the pork tapeworm. The facts speak for themselves, no additional comment is necessary."

THE FLESH OF SWINE

By the Late Deputy Surgeon-General C. W. Buchanan Hamilton, R. N.

(EXCERPTS)

In the dealing with the question of food it is of paramount importance that one should know the exact nature of the food and also what its microscopial and chemical analysis yields. From the nature of the food with which we are concerned, namely, the flesh of swine, we know that we are dealing with an animal which contains muscle, and therefore protein fats. The first thought would suggest that with a little vegetable (carbohydrates) a perfect meal ought to result, but such is not the case. A microscopial and chemical examination proves conclusively that the flesh of swine is harmful to the human body, and that when Al-Quran says we must not eat the flesh of swine it intends to save us from many a disease which would not only shorten our life but make the end of our stay on this earth very miserable.....

My chief aim in writing this article is not so much to give information to those who do not know why swine is forbidden to Muslims, as to eradicate the erroneous idea which prevails among so many learned men, Christian and others. . . .all these stories are false and have no foundation whatsoever. No law laid down in our Book, the Quran, can be localized to any particular country. Al-Islam is universal, and as such its laws must be obeyed wherever one may be whether the place is hot or cold.

Now, therefore, when you see how your Lord has pointed out to you a harmful practice, which you were ignorant of, I would ask you especially to keep in your mind that great verse and act upon it:

"Say: I do not find in that which has been revealed to me anything forbidden for an eater to eat of except that it what has died of itself, or blood poured forth, or flesh of swine —for that surely is unclean— or that which is a transgression, other than the name of Allah having been invoked on it; but whoever is driven to necessity not desiring nor exceeding the limit, than surely your Lord is Forgiving, Merciful."

AFFECTING MORALS

O men! eat the lawful and good things out of what is in the earth, and do not follow the footsteps of the devil; surely he is your open enemy.—(The Holy Quran, 2: 168.)

.....by adding the injunction, do not follow the footsteps of the devil the real object of the prohibition is made plain. The Holy Qur'an recognizes some sort of relation between the physical and the spiritual conditions of man. There is not the least doubt that food plays an important part in the formation of character, and the heart and the brain powers are clearly affected by the quality of food. The same law is seen working in the whole of the animal kingdom. As the Holy Quran is meant for all stages of the development of human society, it contains rules and regulations for the betterment of the physical as well as the moral and the spiritual conditions of man.

(See the English Translation of the Holy Quran, with Arabic Text, by Maulana Muhammed Ali, M. A., LL. B.)

RE-INVESTIGATING THEOLOGY

By Mr. Carl Coffman

I am a former Protestant minister, who first realized the theological inadequacy of the denomination of which I was a member, and who, in the course of reinvestigating my Christian theology, had my attention called to the claims of Isalm.

I am beginning to rethink my religion from the ground up, and I would very much appreciate your sending me such literature as you would believe might be helpful to me in finding the God's will.

I am especially desirous of securing the edition with short notes and introduction, and without Arabic text, of Muhammad Ali's Translation of the Holy Quran. Could you suggest where I obtain a copy?

All literature and also the copy of the Quran, it would be helpful if I could secure in duplicate, inasmuch as I have a friend in a similar situation religiously as myself, who is equally earnest to know the truth and to follow it."

THE LIGHT OF ISLAM

The light of Islam will soon shine (God-willing) in all the corners of the western world. The present is the time which will see the fulfillment of the following prophecy of the Holy Prophet:

"My Lord contracted the earth for me (i. e. showed me a plan of it), so that I saw its Eastern lands and its Western lands, and I was told that the Kingdom of my followers will reach the lands which were shown to me."

The Eastern lands are mentioned first in the prophecy, and Islam spread first in the East; the Western lands are mentioned afterwards, and they will also as surely see the light of Islam as they see the light of day.

"The Sun (of Islam) will rise from the West in latter days."

—Prophet Muhammad

Mansfield and Ashland Win Easy Tourney Tilts

Tygers Whip Galion; A's Blast Crestline

By FRED THARP, News-Journal Sports Editor

Mansfield Senior and Ashland high schools last night set the stage for their 76th meeting in one of Ohio's longest and most interesting basketball feuds.

Both schools had little trouble last night in breezing past opponents in the first round of the sectional Class A tournament on the Mansfield floor. Ashland lowered the boom on Crestline, 69 to 45, in the first game while Mansfield waltzed over the Galion Tigers, 67 to 45.

Friday's semi-final clash between Mansfield and Ashland will be the third of the season between the two schools. Mansfield has taken both 1949 games, winning on the Tyger court, 56 to 40, and at Ashland, 43 to 41. The Tygers have won 40 of the 75 games.

The other semi-final game Friday will pit Bucyrus, the tournament favorite, against Shelby. This morning, 275 additional tickets for the Friday contests went on sale at Senior high.

Mansfield . . . .

Mansfield could easily have run up its highest point total of the year but Coach Vern Hoffman flooded the floor with substitutes in the last half. He kept shuttling in players until the final four minutes when the subs took over for keeps.

LEAD BY 30

At that time, the Tygers were in the van 66 to 36. But the subs, including three players seeing their first varsity action, could not seem to find the range and connected for only one point while Galion picked up nine.

Only in the third period was Galion able to penetrate the Tyger defense with any semblance of regularity. Galion made but three field goals in the first half and two in the final quarter. The Tigers picked up five in the third heat, but then only because the Senior high cagers relied solely on offensive tactics with little regard for defense.

In the third heat, the Tygers literally broke Galion's back with a great display of fast breaking. Senior high piled up 12 field goals and five free throws in that period, with Ed Demyan coming through for 15 points.

Demyan played only about 20 minute and racked up a total of 18 tallies to knot Ray Seif, Galion's soph. sensation, for scoring honors. Bengal Soph. Ken McCally tagged close behind Demyan in the last half, getting 11 of his 13 points.

BUILD UP LEAD

The Tygers opened the game with good, solid basketball and built up a 14-to-3 lead before Bill Wisler connected for Galion's first field goal just before the quarter ended. At the half, Mansfield was in the van, 27 to 13 and led 56-33 as the final quarter opened.

The crowd of 1,400 started pouring out of the gym as the fast-moving Tygers built up their 30-point advantage.

Actually, the first three minutes spelled doom for Galion. Jimmy Anderson came through with a one-hander, Norb Shibinski hit from in close, Paul Ferguson scored a pair of foul goals and Shibinski hit a gratis shot to give Mansfield a 7-to-0 margin.

Anderson stood third on the Tyger scoring list with 11 points to raise his season's total to 283. The Tygers made only 15 of 34 free throws but Galion hit 21 of 33 to keep the margin a bit closer. Anderson fouled out in the third quarter and Wisler duplicated with 30 seconds to go in the fourth.

Senior high did not take a shot from beyond the keyhole all night and finished up with 26 to 68. In the second and third heats the Bengals made 17 of 33. Mansfield has now won 14 and lost eight.

Ashland . . . .

In direct contrast to Mansfield, Ashland used only seven players in running up its second highest point total of the season. All seven of the A's broke into the scoring column with Norm McVickers and Bud Jones leading the way with 15 points apiece.

However, Ashland had to yield the individual scoring laurels to Johnny Johnson, Crestline's 6-5 center. Johnson piled home 19 points, getting six field goals and seven straight free throws.

Ashland raced away to an 18-to-8 lead in the first quarter and only the work of Johnson kept Crestline in the gym. Johnson collected all eight of the Bulldogs' points in that quarter and made six of 10 in the second.

CUT DOWN LEAD

Trailing by 13 points, Crestline refused to give up and presented the A's with some uneasy moments in the second period. Ashland ran its lead to 23-10 early in the second. Then Johnson got two free throws and a basket before Lew Russell hit a foul shot for Ashland. Johnson connected on a rebound and Nap Morton flipped home a foul to slice the margin to 24-18 at the half.

The last half was all Ashland. The A's outscored the Bulldogs, 20 to 12 in the third quarter and 25 to 15 in the fourth.

From the free throw line, Crestline made 13 of 21 shots while Ashland hit 13 of 26. Ray Bates, Ashland guard, was the only player to foul out. The A's will take a 13-and-6 record into Friday's semi-final.

Loudonville, Rittman Win

ASHLAND — Loudonville outlasted Sterling, 61-53, and Rittman eliminated Shreve, 52-43, in Class B sectional tournament basketball games here last night.

Galion Junior High 5 Wins Basketball Crown

GALION — Galion junior high has added another sport title. Last fall, the Tiger cubs won the tri-city football title while this week they copped the Northern Ohio league junior high basketball crown.

Galion defeated Bellevue, 39 to 20, as Hoyt Hathaway connected for 16 points.

Open War Flares In Boxing

Louis Champ Fight Nixed In New York

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK — (UP) — Open war between the New York boxing commission and the national boxing association over the vacant heavyweight crown flared today when chairman Eddie Eagan of the New York body announced officially:

"Our commission definitely will not recognize the Ezzard Charles-Jersey Joe Walcott bout as a title fight."

That bout, to be promoted by ex-champ Joe Louis' new inter national boxing club, w-i-l-l be recognized as a title scrap by the NBA, according to repeated announcements by commissioner Abe J. Green at Miami Beach, Fla.

Those sharply opposed statements of the two most important officials in the fight game were interpreted by boxing men to mean that the biggest battle in pugilistic history was under way—not merely for control of the heavyweight title by one of several promoters, not merely for NBA or New York commission supremacy, but to decide whether Chicago shall replace New York City as the fight center of the world.

NO SITE YET

Louis and his associates have not announced the site nor date of the Charles-Walcott bout, but they are expected to stage it at a Chicago ballpark in June. And to promote their indoor shows a Chcao Stadium, owned by partner Jim Norris.

Chairman Eagan said the New York commission would not recognize the Charles-Walcott bout as a title fight, any more than it would recognize similarly a London bout between Lee Savold and the winner of a Bruce Woodcock-Freddie Mills fight.

He continued, "as far as we are concerned, Charles and Walcott are merely two of many contenders for the title."

He emphasized that the heavyweight championship is not an heirloom to be passed down to persons designated by the retiring champion. It must be won in competition among the outstanding contenders.

Gus Lesnevich Starts Comeback Ring Tour

NEWARK, N. J. — (AP) — Veteran Gus Lesnevich, who lost his light heavyweight title to Freddie Mills in London last summer, starts a comback campaign tonight.

He meets Eldridge Eatman, of Norwalk, Conn. in a 10-rounder at Mosque arena.

Boudreau Plans to Keep Al Rosen For Third Insurance

TUCSON, Ariz.—(AP)—Manager Lou Boudreau intends to keep Al Rosen with the Cleveland Indians during the 1949 season as an understudy for Third Baseman Ken Keltner.

Boudreau said yesterday he would keep the 23-year-old Miami, Fla., rookie "on the basis of his record," although Rosen made an indifferent showing with the Tribe during the short time he was on the roster at the end of last season.

"We may need protection at third base, and Rosen appears to be a major league ball player, even though he hasn't impressed us too much in the few times we've seen him," Boudreau said.

PLEASANT SEASON

Former White Sox Catcher Mike Tresh is looking forward to a pleasant season with the Indians.

Nodding toward his new teammates while taking a breather from calisthentics and running exercises, the 35-year-old veteran said:

"It's a fighting club. That's what we had in Chicago when I first broke in, and win or lose, it was a pleasure to be with those fellows."

Tony Lavelli Closes In On More Honors

NEW HAVEN, CONN. — (AP) — Yale's Tony Lavelli, the hottest bit of scoring machinery in collegiate basketball today, has three more regularly scheduled games in which to continue his assault on all-time collegiate scoring records.

All are eastern intercollegiate (ivy) league games, one with Columbia and two with Harvard.

Totalin' Tony brought his own all-time record to 1870 points last night by scoring 32 points as his ivy league leaders defeated the University of Connecticut 71-55.

That gave him a tie for fifth place on the all-time scoring list with big George Mikan, the former DePaul university star who is now leading the basketball association of America scorers.

Lavelli has little chance of heading off the first two men on the all-time list. He would need 292 points in three games to better the 2161 points held by Brooms Abramovic of Salem. He would need 153 points, 51 points per game, to better 2022 points held by second place Jim Lacy of Baltimore Loyola, who still is an active collegiate player.

Here's a Total That Was Hard For Little Ken

MARTINS FERRY — (INS) — Seventy to seventeen—that's quite a drop, especially for the little Yorkville flash, Ken Alessi. But he did it.

At the three-quarter mark of the season, the five-foot-seven court star racked up 70 counters in one evening of uninhibited net-swishing, but last night a cadiz five — going down 65 to 44 — held him to the little number.

Last night's total was the smallest number Alessi has garnered since the first game of the season.

The Yorkville forward has a grand total of 1,151 points for the year—what oughta be, if it isn't, an all-time record of some sort.

City A Loop Stars Level Colony Pins

The pins at the Colony alleys were still reeling today from the wholesale assault made on them by City A league bowlers last night. Left in the trail of the berserk keglers were nine 600 series, a 265 single game, 39 other games over 200 and a 1069 team game.

Despite all these fine pin feats probably the most unusual was turned in by Charlie Bauer of Waldman's Meats, who was in a rut 158 pins deep. Bauer rolled three straight games of exactly 158 for a 474 total.

For a bit on consistent team bowling there was the third game of Mitsch's Corner store. Lead-off man Orlie Grable had 218, Harold Selby, 215; Frank Burton, 203; Carl Phillipon, 222; and Carl Englehorn, 211, for a 1069 score, the only game that Mitsch's won despite other scores of 870 and 900.

Palmer White of Dr. Pepper had the 265 single game but surrendered series honors to Bob Hilborn, Max Diner who had 189-235-221—645. Other top series of the league included: White, 616; Grable, 614; Alex Kiefer, Waldman's, 613; Floyd Messmore, Bissman's, 609; Joe DeYarmon, Deschner's, 608; Nick Weber, Liederkranz, 607; Al Stirtzinger, Deschner's, 602; and D. Adams, Ideal Billiards, 601.

JUST MISS TOP

Just under the 600 mark were: Art Hilborn, Bissman's, 597; Phillipon, 595; Joe Harrod, Ideal Billiards, 589; and Burton, 588. Carl Heilman of Ace Cabs and Glen Yingling of Liederkranz missed the honor roll by one bad game. Heilman had 203-157-224—584 and Yingling 210-158-213—581.

Only sweep of the night was three games taken by Dr. Pepper from the Eagles.

★

Richland Ladies were paced by Billie Cleckner of Kay Shoppe who had a fine 193-186-205—584. Ev Swank of McCarrick's Gulf was the only other kegler over the 500 mark as she had 211-159-172—542.

Trailing were: Peg Shoup, Fairview Bar, 497; Wanda Conrad, Mansfield Lumber, 485; M. Miller, City Coal, 465; Hon Wehinger, McCarrick's 457, and Reba Siler, McCarrick's 440.

McCarrick's topped the teams with 2273 and got a sweep over Ringside while Fairview won three games from Schenk's.

★

Top spot in the Dominion Women's league went to Audrey Campbell with 160-162-153—475 while Sis DeWeese had 427, Margie Ellish, 420; Gladys Indorf, 415, and Radene Lee, 399.

★

Westinghouse A leaguers were led by Dana Moxley who scattered the maples for a 573 pin count. Tony Santoro pounded out 569, Bob Gresmer counted 568, Rex Workman, 564; John Mauer, 554; and Robert Burger, 540. Mauer led off with a 234 but

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Pacts Under Consideration Might Well Replace the U. N.

LONDON —(UP)— The Western democracies are working out a series of regional defense blocs which may replace the United Nations as guardian of their security.

If and when all the blocs are completed they would cover every major region of the world except Soviet Russia, her satellites and China.

The Russians call the western plan "capitalistic encirclement" —the atomic age version of the old "Cordon Sanitaire."

The west, however, insists the plan is a system of defense for self preservation. Western powers consider it a warning to any potential agressor that he will meet organized resistance if he starts something.

One regional pact already exists. It has been signed, sealed and is in effect. This is the pact of Rio De Janeiro for defense of the western hemisphere. It was drafted at Petropolis, Brazil, in the summer of 1947. It was ratified by the necessary two thirds of the states last year.

Another regional pact, the North Atlantic pact, is nearly ready. By summer it should be a reality. It will link the United States and Canada with the Brussels pact countries — Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. It binds the five western union countries of Europe into a strong military alliance.

Now there is more and more discussion by officials of the need for perhaps two or three more pacts: (1) A Mediterranean pact; (2) A Pacific pact; and (3) A Southeast Asian pact.

Herberts Expecting

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Former Gov. Thomas J. Herbert announced here Wednesday that he and Mrs. Herbert are expecting a baby "early in August." Mrs. Herbert is the former Mildred H. Stevenson of Indianapolis.

Oleo Bill Knocked Out In Tie Vote; Fate Rests With Boyd

Can Demand Rehearing On Measure

Sudden Switch Creates Furor

By REED SMITH

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The oleo bill may be down again but it isn't out—yet.

Sen. William M. Boyd (D-Cuyahoga) has until Monday night to ask reconsideration of the vote by which it failed to pass the Senate Wednesday.

With 17 votes needed, the final count was 15-15. Originally the tally was 16 yes to 14 no. But Boyd changed his yes vote to no to get on the prevailing side, in this case the losers. That leaves him the only one who can demand another vote on the initiated ill to permit manufacture and sale of colored oleo in Ohio.

Boyd isn't talking.

Proponents contend they actually had just enough votes for passage but considered it wiser to avoid a possible question of legality later. Here's how it shaped up:

Sen. Margaret A. Mahoney (D-Cuyahoga), majority leader, presided at the torrid session in the absence of Lt. George D. Nye (D-Pike). His mother, Mrs. Cresse Nye, died early yesterday.

Senate Clerk Dwight L. Matchette of Greenville said Miss Mahoney as presiding officer could not vote without turning the chair over to another senator.

Others contended she was serving only in a temporary capacity and thus could have voted. She has declared in favor of the bill. Thus her yes vote would have been the 17th needed for passage. But after Boyd changed, it was too late.

The lieutenant governor as president of the Senate can not vote except to break a tie, and then not on a bill. Miss Mahoney said that had she voted while acting for Nye, it might have provided opponents grounds for a court challenge.

Of the 33 senators, two others besides Miss Mahoney did not vote. They are Sens. George C. Davies (R-Wauseon), reported ill at his home, and David M. Ferguson (R-Guernsey), absent during the double roll call. Ferguson was in his seat before and after the voting.

The hour and a half Senate oleo debate before jam packed galleries saw party lines shattered. Senators from urban districts lined up against those from predominantly rural regions.

Asks Insane Doctor Get Suspension

Ashland Prosecutor Preparing Request

ASHLAND — Formal request that Dr. Wayne E. Young, Mifflin physician, be suspended from the practice of medicine is under preparation by Ashland county Prosecutor Kenneth J. Nordstrom who will forward the request to the State Medical Board.

The request is being prepared following the medical board's reply to Nardstroms's earlier query it had not been informed when Dr. Young was declared insane two years ago in Richland county probate court and his license cannot be revoked without a hearing.

In his query to the state board last week, Nordstrom had sought revocation of the doctor's license. Now he plans to ask suspension until a hearing can be held.

The Mifflin physician, formerly of Mansfield, is now under examination at Lima State hospital where he was sent from here after being indicted for abortion practice. His trial on the abortion charge was about to open last week when defense attorneys introduced the evidence that he had been declared insane in Richland county in 1946. The three-judge court immediately ordered the 58-year-old physician sent to the Lima hospital for examination.

Dr. H. M. Platter, secretary of the State Medical board, in reply to Nordstrom's earlier letter, stated the department is advised it cannot revoke a license in such cases until after a hearing on charges are filed and procedure undertaken according to provisions of the Administrative Procedure act.

The case of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Stevens, of Boyle road, charged with not keeping their five children in school, was continued by the court.

French Reds Threaten Government

Thorez Inflames Pro-Soviet Crowd

PARIS — (INS) — The French communist high command defied the government's anti-red drive today with a grim assertion that France's workers must, if necessary, turn their weapons against the government to prevent war.

Some 30,000 cheering, frenzied communists heard communist leader Maurice Thorez issue his strongest statement since his appeal to French workers last week to cooperate with the Soviet army in the event of World War III.

Government circles renewed speculation that Thorez may be the target of legal action in view of his repeated pro-Soviet statements. Action has already begun in the national assembly to deprive two other communist deputies — Marcel Cachin and Florimond Bonte — of their immunity, for possible prosecution.

Thorez, together with communist leader Jacques Duclos — a delegate to the nine-nation Cominform — spoke at the jam - packed Palais Des Sports. Several hundred police and Republican guards surrounded the hall, but no incidents occurred.

The beefy Thorez quoted pre-World War I socialist leader Jean Jaures, who called on the working class "to turn its weapons against the government" in case of war.

Property Owners Object To Crouse Street Paving

Three petitions involving street projects were referred last night to city council's street committee for consideration.

Ten property owners on Crouse street signed a petition urging council not to carry through its plan to pave Crouse street. The petition stated that few residents on Crouse street owned automobiles and that they would not benefit from the paving.

A petition signed by 12 property owners in the vicinity of Barnard avenue protested the vacation of Euclid avenue.

Council approved an ordinance to appropriate $1,128 from the general fund to supplement the city's share for the improvements on three city streets.

The appropriation included: Abbeyfeale road, $448; Fairlawn avenue, $363; Poplar street, $317.

Council amended the special assessments to be charged against property owners on eight streets which were improved.

Bomber Encircles Globe, Non-Stop

NEW RECORDS come so thick and fast in the field of aviation that even the astounding accomplishment of encircling the globe in a non-stop flight, as was announced yesterday, is rather nonchalantly accepted by those who do not take into account the tremendous potentialities of such a feat—in the event of a future world war.

The flight was made in 94 hours—just two hours short of four days—and the distance almost equaled that of the circumference of the earth at the equator. Method of refueling from other planes four times during the trip, with perfect co-ordination, provided additional drama to the story, which will have its place for all time in the history of aviation.

Least attractive, however, from the standpoint of present and prospective air travelers, would be the idea of making a non-stop trip around the world, with the same starting and stopping place.

Noting that this successful experiment was carried through by a crew of 14 members of a U.S. Air Force B-50 bomber capable of carrying a 10,000-pound bomb load 6,000 miles, the thought cannot be escaped that such tests are made in preparation for possible war, rather than for the purposes of peace—but it may be that a showing of superior strength is now the best way to assure against development of dangerous heat in the present "cold war."

It has also been announced, almost as an afterthought, it appears, that the Air Force has ordered 390 planes of the same type as that which made the world-encircling flight—non-stop.

Problems Confront New Nation

ISRAEL, the new nation, now has, like the rest of the world, peace-time problems to solve. Its enemies seem to be dispersed, leaving its nationals in sole possession of their land. Now come the prosaic problems involving the everyday living of the present inhabitants and the incoming flood of immigrants.

Skipping, for the time being, postponable projects involving irrigation of deserts and water-power installations, the Jewish economists have drawn up plans which will make immediate use of their present assets. Homes deserted by 750,000 Arabs who fled them are being occupied by immigrants. Most of these are in or near cities, and their occupants will go to work at jobs as nearly as possible approximating those they left. Only farming land which is now fully productive will be used for the time being, since ambitious reclamation projects require too much money.

Much outside financial help will be needed in Israel for years to come. The United States Export-Import Bank has recently loaned the Israeli a billion dollars, over a third of which is to be used for farm expansion. Government schools are turning out young farm experts, who, by the use of modern machinery and methods, are doubling and tripling the amount of food formerly produced by the Arabs.

This is an historically important project. The age-old dream of the Jewish people—a homeland of their own—has at last been realized. They are ready to prove their ability to hold it and make it productive. This is an inspiring task, but one requiring careful planning, high intelligence and much hard work.

Law Requires Dogs Be Licensed

WHILE the subject of employing an "assistant" to the county dog warden is being discussed pro and con, it may be assumed that there is general agreement with the idea that all dogs should be licensed, as required by law.

The fact that many dogs have been permitted to run at large in city and county without carrying a license is also well known, and if there is to be a cleanup of this situation it seems obvious that the services of more than one man will be at least temporarily required in rounding up strays.

It appears that some dog owners ignore the requirement for securing a license and there is food for thought in the statement by Guy F. Stewart, chairman of the board of county commissioners, that investigation of one relief case disclosed 13 children and 14 dogs in the family home.

The season is at hand when roaming packs of dogs become a nuisance in residential areas, and it is a reasonable assumption that all dog owners should be held responsible for keeping their pets on their own property.

If results are such as to show justification for employment of an assistant dog warden this procedure will impress many as being advisable.

Deadly Doses of Sleeping Pills

SEVERAL OHIO cities are discussing the advisability of encouraging action by council to prevent drug stores from selling sleeping pills, except on a doctor's prescription—as has already been done in a number of cities over the country.

Better procedure, however, would be to have such a safeguard established on a statewide basis, by legislative action, as has been in effect in New Jersey since 1933.

Extent to which overdoses of sleeping pills have caused death is convincing proof that some restraint should be placed on their sale and a movement toward this end is extending into all parts of the country.

The proposal that each state have three senators instead of two doesn't seem to be making much of a hit, as some states seem to have difficulty in finding two that measure up to the job.

Mansfield seems, thus far, to have escaped the Pyramid racket which has been infesting larger cities—what's the idea of neglecting such a fertile field for sucker money?

What Some Other People Are Saying

REP. CHET HOLIFIELD (D-Calif), in an exclusive interview with International News Service: "If an atomic bomb were exploded in the water off Manhattan Island, especially while the wind was blowing toward the island, it would contaminate lower Manhattan Island with radioactivity. . . Danger In Hasty Action

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — A distinction is beginning to be drawn in Congress between the so-called North Atlantic Pact, the projected alliance with Canada and western-European democracies, and the proposal linked with it to furnish a billion or two billion dollars' worth of arms to those same nations.

Congress soon will be called upon to approve both. They will be considered separately. It looks as if the arms project will encounter much more opposition in Congress than the alliance. It could be truly dangerous as an incitement to war.

It is like an overt act. Where an alliance is an understanding between persons to help each other out, the arms project, in this case, is like handing the fellow who is out in front, closest to a possible enemy, a loaded pistol. That is much more of a threat to the other fellow, at least it is so regarded by him.

The alliance, too, holds dangerous potentialities. It can, however, be more easily defended, as it is being defended, and on two grounds.

One is that such regional agreements are permissible within the United Nations, as, for example, the inter-American pact that we have with Latin-American countries, which is held up as the model of the proposed North Atlantic Pact. Second is that Russia has her own alliance in eastern Europe, and has had since the end of the war.

We have criticized Russia for her expansion through her satellite nations and this expansion has been interpreted in some quarters, and in considerable propaganda, as having at least the implications of aggressive intent.

It has come to have that meaning in the American mind to a degree. There's no reason, of course, why Russia should not look at the North Atlantic Pact in the same way, particularly if it is backed up with armed assistance.

* * *

"Lukewarm" Stage.

SO WE definitely enter a slightly warmer stage of the "cold war," which might now be called the "lukewarm war." We edge up closer to each other, and with no smile on our respective faces.

We in this country should only be sure that our eyes are open as to exactly what we are about to do. It has not been signed and sealed yet.

Both the alliance and the arms support for western Europe are new departures for us.

As for the alliance, while it may be compared to that with our Latin-American neighbors to the South, there is really a difference. For well over 100 years we have had the Monroe Doctrine in which the United States guarantees Latin America from colonization and conquest from Europe. That is a settled and long-established policy. Our recent alliance is in keeping with that.

But, in the North Atlantic Pact, we are reaching out to Europe for an alliance as we never have done before. While we have engaged in two wars in the last quarter century with European allies, we joined the alliance after the war already had begun, and entered both wars after they had started.

This time we are premeditatively working out an alliance in peacetime. There is a difference, and we should recognize that, even if we consider the step necessary.

Before we take these steps irrevocably, we might take another look, for they involve a really momentous decision. In their present stage they offer a bargaining point which might be used to get Russia into negotiations, and certainly that should be attempted.

Once they are done the situation might become so rigid on each side that most anything could, and might, happen.

Washington Calling

Obstacles To Labor Law

By MARQUIS CHILDS

BOTH HEAT and light, with considerably more of the former, are being generated as the Senate hearings on new labor legislation continue. This is a forecast of the debate to come on the Senate floor, which promises to be long drawn out and full of rancor.

The prospect is that the final bill may be really satisfactory to no one and especially not to organized labor. Granted that organized labor was at fault at the outset in trying to make the Senate jump through the labor hoop like an obedient trained seal, this will not be a healthy situation. Out of it could come strikes and widespread labor unrest.

But sensible and knowledgeable men continue to search for a reasonable solution. Between the emotional poles of Senator Taft on the one hand and Senators Murray and Neely on the other hand is a wide area of agreement.

A majority of the Senate would be likely to favor repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act if there could be substituted for it an improved Wagner Act. Under the "improvements" both jurisidictional strikes would be required to bargain in good faith. Secondary boycotts and jurisidctional strikes would be prohibited as unfair labor practices.

Unions would be required to file and publish financial statements and by-laws. The conciliation service would be retained as an independent agency.

* * *

Controversial Points.

THE CHIEF obstacles to agreement are the closed-shop provision and the issue of whether the federal courts shall have the power through injunction to stop strikes that threaten the national welfare. On these two points most of the heat is generated.

From Joseph Kovner, a specialist in labor law, comes what seems to me a reasonable proposal to bridge the dissesion over these two points. He suggest that a commission of experts be appointed now by Congress to study and make recommendations within six months on the main points of dispute.

The commission would consider the closed shop and other forms of compulsory union membership to determine what regulations, if any, should be included in law to insure the rights of the individual worker. It would also study possible controls to be applied when strikes seem about to endanger the safety or health of the nation.

During the six months the experts could go into every phase of these touchy issues and with particular reference to the actual practices and habits of management and labor. Their recommendations would carry much weight with congress.

Such a commission would not necessarily consist of experts already tagged as on the side of either management or labor. In universities and research institutions an enormous amount of more or less objective study has gone into labor-management relations.

Thus Mr. Kovner, formerly assistant general counsel to the CIO, was one of a group that spent three years in a study of labor organization financed by Johns Hopkins University, That study has not yet been published.

Congress would not wait for the commission's recommendations to repeal the T-H Act and adopt a modified versien of the old Wagner Law authorizing the closed shop and without the right to enjoin strikes in the courts.

Leaders of organized labor would feel that they were under close public scrutiny during this period and they would be unlikely to take advantage of the repeal of Taft-Hartley controls.

Phone Calls Disrupt Pearson Household

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — It's funny how, when you make a promise to your wife, something always happens so you can't keep it.

Last week while riding home from California, I made a lot of promises first to myself, and later to the little woman about spending more time at home, seeing more of my family, and taking a good rest on the farm.

I had had enough of international good will, I told myself. And after I got caught up with a big pile of mail and wrote letters to the heads of the railroads, and a raft of governors, mayors and other folks who had been extremely nice, I would take Mrs. P. away for the little rest we'd always talked about but somehow never seemed to manage.

So, filled with all these good thoughts, I got home and began to put them into operation right away. Mrs. P. looked dubious at first, but then she almost began to believe me. For I did a very revolutionary thing. I turned off the telephone.

Mrs. P. has always talked about what would happen if I turned off the phone—her idea being that nothing would happen at all. The world, she said, would go on just as usual, and nobody would miss me, nor I them.

So I told her I was going to settle down for a nice long evening with her, wasn't even going to look at my desk, and just to show that I really meant business, I turned off the phone.

Of course, I didn't turn off the phone in the kitchen—and I'm not quite sure whether this was by accident or by design. With the phone turned off upstairs, you can still barely hear the phone in the kitchen, but since it sounds faint and far away I am a little braver about not answering it.

* * *

Harry Truman Speaks.

WELL, anyway, having turned off the phone, I began to tell Mrs. P. how I had reformed, wasn't going to work so hard and how we would go away for a little trip. We even began to figure out where we were going.

Everything was lovely, and we even had one solid uninterrupted hour together, when suddenly the telephone in the kitchen began to ring. I was very brave. I ignored it. It rang and rang, but it didn't faze me at all. I just pretended not to hear.

Finally the phone stopped, but about 30 minutes later it rang again. Though it was way off in the kitchen, nevertheless it had a certain air of persistency. Finally I could resist no longer. I picked up the receiver.

The United Press was calling to tell me that President Truman had sounded off at a dinner at the Reserve Officers' Association, calling me an S. O. B. They wanted my comment.

I told them I was spending a quiet evening with my wife, and that if Harry Truman wanted to spend his evenings away from his wife making speeches about other people that was his privilege. I didn't see why I should comment.

But, said the United Press, other speakers at the dinner specifically mentioned you and the President's remarks definitely were directed at you.

So, in a weak moment, I commented.

* * *

Telephone Continues.

THEN I remembered that other long, persistent telephone ring; so, since the fat was in the fire, I called up the Associated Press. "We've just been trying to get you," they said, "but you were out."

"Oh," I replied.

Since I'm supposed to be a tough, thick-skinned newspaperman, I didn't tell them that I was sitting at home listening to their ring and trying to be brave enough not to answer it.

After that the phone just kept on ringing, and has kept on ringing every day since.

I haven't written all those letters thanking the folks who were nice to me, and I haven't taken the vacation with Mrs. P. In fact, I'm a little surprised that she's still speaking to me.

"Of course," I was mean enough to tell her, "it's all your fault. You elected him. You were the one who was rooting for him. And if he disrupts our evening and our vacation, then it's your fault, not mine. After all, you were the one who put him in the White House."

* * *

Mr. Truman's Lemon.

WHEN I was a youngster I had a prof named Edwin Tomlinson who used to hand out a lot of advice which I didn't pay much attention to then, but which has proved valuable since. One thing he advised was: "If someone hands you a lemon, make it into lemonade."

That's what I'd like to do with the lemon President Truman handed me the other night. I don't see any reason why the initials "S. O. B." should necessarily stand for what Mr. Truman meant them to mean.

The meaning of any word is what's in people's minds. Some English words are fighting terms in England though they have an innocent meaning here.

When I was in Australia some years ago I was shocked to hear an Australian girl use a word which never would be tolerated in polite society here. But it meant nothing there.

So words and their abbreviations are all a matter of education, custom and general usage. And I am sure Mr. Truman is a good enough sport to join me in putting a new interpretation on the initials "S. O. B."—which can much better mean "Servants Of Brotherhood."

When Harry Truman was a farm boy driving mules in Missouri, I don't doubt that he needed some pretty strong language.

Looking Under Surface

By INEZ ROBB

TEXAS CITY, Texas — On the surface, Texas City has long since returned to bustling normalcy.

But no man can estimate the scars that lie beneath the surface in the hearts of the widowed and the orphaned: In the heart, for instance, of Mrs. Barney Hattenbach, who lost four sons in the explosion of the French freighter Grand Camp on the sunny morning of April 16, 1947.

However, this proud, resourceful community has done its intelligent best to bind the spiritual wounds and ease the mental burdens of the injured and incapacitated, the women left husbandless and the children left fatherless.

This is a community imbued with Texas spunk. Many widows, like Mrs. William Voiles, whose husband has been superintendent at the great Republic oil and refinery plant here, went back to work at the plant.

Mrs. Russell Holmsten, whose husband had been a vice-president at Republic, is now the town's school nurse. Both Voiles and Holmsten were killed in the Grand Camp explosion.

But the town was left with many other widows who were not trained for any particular work, and with men incapacitated in the future for the heavy work by which they had earned their bread in the past.

So the Texas City disaster relief committee, powered by the $1,063,000 voluntarily sent the community by kind persons in every corner of the glove, hired two experienced social case workers.

These two women initiated the town's intensely intelligent rehabilitation program which has given scores of men and women fresh hope and a new grip on life.

* * *

Examples of Heroism.

MANY WOMEN, their tuition pre-paid by the committee, have been sent to business college or to beauty school. The latter has been a godsend to a number of mothers with children. Such women, both white and colored, have been able to set up small beauty shops in their own homes. It has enabled them to earn a livelihood while still maintaining a full time home for their children.

Of Texas City's 28 volunteer firemen who were on the docks fighting the fire aboard the Grand Camp on the morning of April 16, two years go, 27 were killed instantly when the ship exploded. Two of these widows, sisters-in-law, are now successfully running the trucking firm they inherited from their husbands.

Another widow, sent to business school by the committee, is now working in the city hall All have been given a helping hand, if needed.

A Mexican dock-worker who lost a leg in the catastrophe is now in Houston, learning to be a cobbler. The committee is paying his way, but Jose expects to be self-supporting within a year.

If Texas City looks normal on the surface, it is only too well aware of the agony that continues in many homes for many individuals.

It prayerfully watches young Raymond Rohden, one of the popular Rohden twins, hoping that his severely injured leg will not finally have to be amputated after so much pain and surgery.

Randall, the other twin, lost a leg in the disaster. Now in their early 'twenties, the boys run a trucking business, despite their injuries.

The community knows only too well that many of its citizens must undergo further long and painful surgery. There are a number of stubborn bone graft and several surgery cases still to be completed.

Texas City will never forget or neglect. When the volunteer fund gives out, it's a cinch that Texas City will manage, somehow, to continue to care for those of its own who need it.

Farmer's Diary

Mostly About Feet

By CALVIN A. BYERS

ABOUT this time every year—when the sap comes up in the trees, and the weather changes often—Great Uncle Malachi used to have trouble with his feet. I recall the pained look upon his broad ruddy face as he came in from the last trip to the barn at evening, bringing in his hand the wooden candy pail that usually hung in the woodshed.

This shallow pail was big enough to hold considerable warm water from Great Aunt Rhoda's kitchen reservoir—and he always filled it about half full and set it carefully in the center of a round rag rug beside the woodbox. When he had opened the oven door and pulled up a straight-backed cane bottomed chair, the old man was ready for genuine enjoyment.

Off came his boots—the bootjack hung in the chimney corner—and off came the heavy socks which were carefully laid on the rank of wood in the woodbox.

Then he sat down squarely upon the old straight chair and gently tested the water with one great toe. It was still too warm.

"Ach," he would say, and call whoever was nearest—"Rhoda, you, Yonnie, bring me a dipper of water from the pump—that's a good handy boy."

When the water was right, it was wonderful what contentment came upon the kindly old face with its rim of white hair. Then if I knelt and washed his knotty, thick old feet for him, he accepted the service gratefully and very often would tell a funny story, or ransack his pockets to find some little gift for me.

Sometimes it was a few nuts or a big shiny apple that he had in his pocket—once I remember he gave me a little penknife that I prized for a long long time. But if he just put his big hand on my shoulder, I felt repaid.

Sometimes Aunt Rhoda would gently remove the socks he had taken off and lay clean newly-darned ones there while nobody was noticing. There was an old razor in the cupboard drawer that was used for trimming corns and callouses. The ministry of the feet was one of the endearing personal services that could be rendered to a loved one . . . we respected that fact.

Great Uncle Malachi lived to be 89 and died in his sleep. He was always hale and happy, his children were a credit to the community. I think one foundation principle of serene happy home was that habit of putting the emphasis on fundamentals . . . nobody can be serene if his corns are hurting, nor respect himself much unless his feet are clean.

Assistant Dog Warden.

Editor News-Journal:

I am like, Will Rogers—I only know what I read in the paper. In the matter of hiring an assistant dog warden on full time at $225. per month, I feel that an extravagant mistake was made. In times like the present when a downward trend is very noticeable, it seems very unwise to do something that has not been considered advisable in flush times.

I would be of the opinion, that if a poll could be taken on the matter, that 75 per cent of the taxpayers would oppose such action. Governor Lausche said the other day that now was the time to count the pennies.

I hope the commissioners' action in the matter mentioned will be reconsidered.

Tighten Blockade

FRANKFURT —(U.P.)— American troops tightened their blockade of eight Russians in the Soviet repatriation mission's headquarters today, sealing off the street against all bystanders and traffic.

The blockade was tightened after one of the Russians appeared at the gate this morning, asked for a newspaper and was obliged by a lieutenant of military police on guard to prevent anything from reaching the Russians.

The fate of the American lieutenant for breaking his own blockade was not disclosed immediately, but the officer in charge, Provost Marshal Col. S. A. Wood, was extremely provoked.

"I don't want any airlift starting here," Wood snapped after his troops ordered photographers to move away from the front of the blockaded building and stand across the street.

"I want to be sure no one comes here and throws things over the fence to them. From now on they get nothing—nothing."

The newspaper handed the Russian was a copy of the U S Army publication Stars and Stripes which bannered yesterday's non-stop glove-girdling flight by an American B-50 bomber.

German police erected "detour" signs in the street at both ends of the block where the mission headquarters stands. The building has been under blockade since 8 a m. yesterday

Just to make sure the Russians were not getting anything, Wood ordered German workmen to dig up the water mains leading to the house and remove sections of the pipe.

"Yesterday we just turned off the taps," he said. "Today we'll cut the pipes, just to be sure."

Blaze In Truck Brings Three Fire Companies

A rubbish fire in a dump truck, owned by the Baith Bros. trucking company, 392 Laird avenue, brought firemen from Central, No 2 and No. 4 stations to the scene at 10.22 p. m. yesterday. Firemen said no damage was caused.

At 11:20 p. m. Central station men answered a call to the home of Mrs. Laura Middleton, 52 South Diamond street, where a chimney was burning out Again, firemen reported no damage.

Would Line Up License Fees

Green Tells Need For Higher Gas Taxes

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Ernest M. Green, president of the Ohio Turnpike committee today advocated an increase in gasoline taxes and auto license fees.

In support of his claim, Green said 16 other state legislatures have bills proposing gasoline tax boosts. Six states asked an increase from four to six cents a gallon—the same as in Ohio. Green contended:

"Either we are going to raise our gasoline tax rate to eight or ten cents, increase auto license fees and find other new money or we will continue to have an inadequate highway system in Ohio."

Green said plans for turnpikes are a "partial cure for the situation." He urged the use of private capital in the construction and recommended the passage of the turnpike bill which received the unanimous approval of the Ohio Senate several days ago.

The committee head explained that the cost of road-building has increased, but that "the tax rate on gasoline and auto license fees have not been increased."

Green stated flatly that Ohio "does not have the money to keep its roads in good condition."

Survey Finds 68 Metalwork Plants In Area

The Mansfield industrial area consists of 68 metalworking plants having more than 21 plant workers, according to a survey recently completed by The Iron Age, national metalworking weekly. This area, including all of Crawford, Marion, Morrow and Richland Counties, is dominated by 8 electrical machinery and equipment plants and 20 other machinery plants.

Of the total of 23,488 metalworking plant employees in the area, electrical machinery and equipment plants employ 9,065 workers, while machinery plants employ 6,710 workers.

Other metalworking plants in the Mansfield area with more than 21 plant workers are 15 primary metal plants, 13 fabricated metal plants, and 6 transportation equipment plants.

The total of 23,488 metalworking plant workers in this industrial area represents about 3 per cent of the total of 662,498 metalworkers in Ohio. They go to make up a total of 5,488,994 metal plant workers in the U. S.

The study discloses that welding and machine shops are the most frequently occuring manufacturing departments in the Mansfield area.

MISS MARY MIHAILOFF GIVEN NUPTIAL PARTIES

Bride-elect of Donald Krichbaum of Columbus Feted at Two Parties; To Be Wed Sunday.

YOU CAN ENJOY GOOD HEALTH
STOMACH AILMENTS, WEAK KIDNEYS, RHEUMATIC PAINS, ARTHRITIS, NEURITIS
and such complaints as Headaches, Nervousness, Acids, Toxins, Bloating, Lack of Vitality, Energy, Poor Appetite Underweight Dizzy Spells Drugless Health!
NO MATTER how long you have been suffering from stomach, kidney and rheumatic distress, and what drugs you have tried before, you can, now, hope for relief if you take GEO-MINERAL. With your eyes SEE the results seven days after you start taking it.
DRUGGISTS, Chemists cannot make GEO-MINERAL. It comes from the earth — Nature's laboratory. Contains NO dope, NO alcohol, NO oil. ONLY Nature's minerals—the oldest, most reliable remedy for rheumatism, arthritis, kidney and stomach ailments.
Wonder Minerals
FOR THOUSANDS of years sufferers, on advice of doctors, go to mineral springs to get cure, or relief. The late President Roosevelt used to go to Mineral Springs in Georgia. He was helped or would not have gone there twice a year.
WE HAVE all heard of the miraculous springs of Lourdes, France, and famous Thronion in ancient Greece, where, according to legend, Hercules, the god of eternal strength and youth, drank its waters and bathed to be forever young.
IF YOU ARE a sufferer, and can not go to the mineral springs, try GEO-MINERAL which contains a blend of the same minerals that can be found at the world's best springs. The minerals in it may work miracles.
Amazing Results
WATCH your elimination from your bowels two or three days after you start using GEO-MINERAL. The waste, black as coal, will break away and you will SEE it! Also examine your urine. You may see impurities—poisonous waste—coming out of your kidneys, and feel the relief. Be sure to watch for all this to realize its priceless value.
MEDICAL records show 65% of men and women over 35 suffer from nutritional mineral-iron anemia. When you feel nervous, dull, tired, lazy, have dizzy spells, no ambition to work or play, a poor appetite when your eyes lack that bright spark and your mind brilliance, when headaches get the best of you, and you feel old before your time, and life seems not worth living, with worry wearing you down—it may be simply lack of minerals in your blood. GEO-MINERAL is then what you need.
Read What They Say!

"We have sold Geo-Mineral for the last six months and it has been one of the best selling drug items we have ever handled"—say Porter Bros., pharmacists of Concord, N. C. "Users report amazing results in many instances, and we personally believe Geo-Mineral is a good medicine for purposes as indicated, and recommend it to sufferers who have tried other medicines with little if any results. They may discover that Geo-Mineral is what they have probably been needing and looking for — we unhesitatingly recommend it."
100% Guaranteed!
WE URGE everyone to try GEO-MINERAL. Do not hesitate one moment. Go to your drug store now. Get one bottle. Use it one week. If you are not 100 per cent satisfied, we will refund your money.
REGARDLESS of how long you have been suffering, and how many medicines you have tried before, GEO-MINERAL may be the remedy you need!
TRY it today! It may do wonders for you—and be the best investment for your health. Make you feel, eat, sleep, work and enjoy life better.

Horoscope

For Friday, March 4
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE auguries for this day emphasize the importance of elders, old plans and institutions, in which thoroughly practical and constructive issues are at stake. It may be desirable to dig up statistics, facts and figures before coming to final decisions, since long-range factors are in the balance. The purely personal or domestic issues could be stabilized by realistic analysis, as in this connection it may be needful to get a right perspective, especially in relation to partnerships and domestic solidarity and endurance, involving a health factor as well as physical possessions.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are urged to take up the matter of stabilizing their affairs, with a long term review in sight. Plans and projects already established on a staunch and enduring basis may need bolstering, with a revamping or development in connection with family, partnerships or relations with elders or old established institutions. While the general outlook seems propitious and sound, yet it may be possible to unearth some dubious or dangerous undercurrent.

A child born on this day may be shrewd, clever, diligent and efficient, but tricky circumstances may undermine its best efforts.

Leaves Estate Of $75,000

An estate with a probable value of $75,000 was left by Miss Nellie McIlviane, Mansfield school teacher, who died last Monday, an application filed in probate court for the appointment of an administrator disclosed today. There was no will, but a search to determine if one exists is continuing.

Appointed as administrator was a cousin of the deceased woman. The cousin is John H. Cheshire, of Lakewood, Ohio. Named in the application as next of kin were 16 cousins and an uncle. There were none from the Mansfield area. However a supplemental list is to be filed as soon as other next of kin are determined.

Attorney J. H. Gongwer, who filed the application, said that a determination as to division of the estate cannot be made until a family tree is made up and all the next of kin are determined.

The application placed the probable value of personal property at $25,000 and of real estate at $50,000.

Miss McIlviane taught at John Simpson junior high school for six years and in Mansfield schools for 32 years.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Skipping home from school yesterday, Ernest T. Horvath, 7, ran into the side of a delivery truck and was killed.

SLAIN INFANT—A police officer points to the tiny hand of June Holober, eight-month-old baby, protruding from its shallow grave on the grounds of the Green Forest Nudist camp at Money's Corner, Va. The child's father, Charles, admitted shooting his wife, Frances, and burying the infant alive in the same grave with its mother.

People once believed that eels would grow from horse hairs cut into finger-long pieces and thrown into a river.

Warm-Cold Winter Threat to Peach Crop, Apples Seem Safe

Peaches may come rather expensive to the consumer this year if the winter continues to alternately freeze and thaw. So say the local peach growers.

Esley Cleckner, who has about 3,000 peach trees on his farm on U. S. Route 30-E, reports that two-thirds of his peach buds were frozen out last month. He explained that peaches begin their formation in the fall of the year and when winters are mild they continue development throughout the winter, but when extremely cold weather hits the trees many advanced buds are destroyed.

Cleckner gave some hope to the situation when he added that the number of potential peaches budded last fall was greater than usual, "and if we don't have too many frosts this spring, we may have some peaches, yet."

The orchardist at the Mansfield Reformatory, J. C. Miller, and George Barnhill, apple-peach raiser on Ontario road, had a brighter outlook on the local fruit crop.

The two fruit growers, who have mostly apple trees, said there is no indication the apple crop was affected by the sudden change in temperatures. Because of the sheltered position of their peach trees, they also noted that little damage had been done to them by the weather.

Warn Farmers On DDT Usage

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The National Agricultural Chemicals association today cautioned farmers against applying DDT direct to dairy animals until further information is available.

NACA said it is continuing research to determine the maximum safe level of DDT in milk and other foodstuffs and on safe methods of application to cattle, barns and forage crops.

Both the Food and Drug administration and the Agriculture department have been interested in finding out the effect of spraying DDT direct on dairy cattle.

HOW MUCH IS ONE RESCUE WORTH?

A tiny hand above the water. Then slowly, slowly it sinks. But there is time—still time—if only someone is near, someone who knows what to do. A twelve-year-old boy, a woman, an old man—anyone, if only he knows.

And the wonderful thing is that there are millions who do know what to do and how to do it. Last year alone, you—through your Red Cross—made it possible to train more than a half-million people in water safety. Another 55,000 were trained and qualified as instructors in water safety and first aid. It is estimated that 17,000,000 have had training in first aid and water safety through your Red Cross.

Many of these people are able to save human life—priceless human life. How much is this ability worth? It's hard to say—unless it is someone you love who has been rescued.

Your contributions to your Red Cross can help carry on this training program, help take it to new areas that need it. Give now—it may save a life sooner than you think.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

(Oregon University)
By TRACEY CROMWELL DUDLEY

What's in a name? That depends . . .

Let's take the name Muhammadan, for example.

You have probably often used that word and never thought anything about it—but Muslims themselves do not call themselves Muhammadans!

Obviously an important story is involved. It is not just a case of somebody's desiring to be different or fancy or fussy.

Muhammadan refers to the Arabian Prophet, Muhammad. As applied to the man himself, the adjective is correct and acceptable. The trouble, however, is that most of us do not stop there. We go on to apply the term to the religion taught by this man! . . .

In other words, did Muhammad teach Muhammadanism? As shocking as it may seem, the answer is not a simple, clear "Yes." ... What a scholar might, for technical purposes, term Muhammadanism could represent but a small part of the Message of Muhammad! . . . If Muhammad had been the first to teach his faith, then it might be half-way correct to call it Muhammadanism. But, as the Hebrew Scriptures ("The Old Testament") bear witness, this religion goes back far beyond the days of Muhammad himself—who was the last of the whole long line of great prophets to flourish among the Hebrews and their Arabian cousins.

The only word that is rich, full, and broad enough to describe this ancient faith is the Arabic term, Islam. Moreover, whereas Muhammadanism only names something (and is rarely used altogether correctly), Islam not only names but also describes this Religion of the Prophets.

Islam summarises this whole religion in three ways. First, it refers to the spiritual experience underlying the faith, for Islam is the Arabic word that describes the process or way of approach to God taught by it. Secondly, it describes the way of life of the believer—the whole body of truths upon which his faith and practice are based. Thirdly, it has the meaning of "peace" — "the peace of God which passeth all understanding" — that all-inclusive blessing that is the most precious gift of God to men.

Let us consider each of these meanings of the name Islam more fully to see how it represents so appropriate a description of the Scriptural teachings attributed to Moses, Jesus, and the host of lesser prophets to appear in ancient Israel.

The Way and the Truth and the Life

The name of Islam is derived from an Arabic root literally meaning "to feel perfectly safe, to be absolutely tranquil"; thus, by implication, "to be at perfect peace with oneself and the rest of the world by having done one's duty, by having paid up one's dues." By extension, the following meanings are derived:

First, Islam as a way of approach to Deity. This is the process by which one "pays up his dues" and approaches a sense of well-being. This is the spiritual experience through which one comes into proper relationship with God — free, spontaneous and with the whole will and judgment of God.

This is the process by which one achieves that state of harmony with the Divine that is displayed all about one in the world of nature—it is getting the self into tune with Creation itself. It is the acceptance of the Divine will and judgment for the individual and for humanity. "Not my will, but Thine, be done."

This is the experience described as becoming spiritually "as a little child" in order that one may "enter the Kingdom of God." It is "the second birth"—the birth of the spiritual man.

It is not a fatalistic acceptance of what is, but an active, vital, creative resignation to that which is to be. It is the merging of the individual with the Divine purposiveness. It is the submission of the spirit that enables the God-disciplined person to strive in the path of Allah—to live and work in accordance with the very nature of the world and the purposes of human life, as these truths are disclosed to us through revelation, nature, and history.

Secondly, Islam as a body of truth Divinely revealed. As the name of the faith that has these teachings as its heart, Islam describes the whole body of belief and practice to which its followers give allegiance.

Thirdly. Islam as a way of God-integrated life. In the sense of "peace," Islam describes the sense of happiness, security, and well-being that results from a harmonious relationship with God. One feels confident that he is working with the forces underlying the world and life itself, that one is moving with the future as it is being unfolded in the present. This is more than self-integration: this is the integration of the individual with the whole stream of life of which he is a part Only the word "peace" can describe this state: it is the peace of God.

Thus we see that the word Islam describes the religion taught by Muhammad in a rich, full way. In fact, we have already made clear the monumental simplicity of this faith, as it is revealed in its structure, which we have just analysed. The secret of the power—like the greatness—of the Religion of the Prophets lies in its simplicity, directness, clarity. It moves men because it speaks to their condition and gives results.

In short, what is in the name Islam? A description of a faith? Yes, but much more than just that. The name Islam is more correctly a programme of action—a guide to vital spiritual life. For the true seeker, it can become a simple, clear chart of the way to true happiness and peace.

The Message and the Man

How did Muhammadanism come to be used as an equivalent term for Islam? Clearly it is a coined word composed, like such names as Confucianism and Zoroastrianism, from the proper name of the reputed founder of the religion.

Nevertheless, the term Muhammadanism is objectionable not so much for its essential meaninglessness and flatness as for its incompatibility with two very important teachings of Muhammad himself.

In the first place, Muhammad (the peace and blessings of God be on him!) would have been the first to object to such a term, for it refers to, and emphasises, the man rather than his message. And, as highly as they respect his memory, Muslims do not ascribe divinity to the Prophet. In fact, one of the cardinal principles of their faith is that God must not be dishonoured by the attributing of Divine qualities to any human being, any more than the stature of a great man ought to be lessened through a belief that he was not subject to the same trials and temptations as other mortals . For Muslims, the greatest honour is bestowed upon Muhammad's memory when a person truly believes that he was, par excellence, the Messenger and Prophet of God . . . Muhammad himself indicated the term by which he should be known when he referred to himself as a Muslim.

(A Moslem—more correctly, Muslim—is "one who submits himself entirely to God." The term is parallel to the word Islam in derivation, meaning, and usage.)

In the second place, by calling himself a Muslim, Muhammad was able to emphasise the historical background of Islam as the Religion of the Prophets .. Muhammad was not the founder of Islam. He re-established it, on the one hand. He made it complete in its fundamental teachings, on the other hand.

Islam is the soul-stirring Primitive Semitic Revelation described in the Book of Genesis. It antedates Judaism—the Mosaic Revelation — the founding of which, through the work of Moses, is described in the Books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. Islam was the religion of Abraham, Prophet-Patriarch and common ancestor of both of the main Semitic peoples, the Hebrews and the Arabs.

The Primitive Semitic and the Jewish Dispensations, however, were neither final nor complete in themselves. They were not meant to be; this is everywhere the testimony of the Sacred Writings of the Jews. The Primitive Semitic (or Islamic) Dispensation (Manifestation, Revelation) was carried to a higher plane of spirituality in the Mosaic. which followed it; but the latter was intended, not for mankind, but for one nation. And, as we shall see, both Moses and Jesus warned their hearers that another great prophet would follow them ..

The third and last of this series of Semitic Dispensations was given through the instrumentality of Muhammad. It finds its expression in Scripture in the Holy Qur"an, the so-called Bible of the Muslims (Detailed supplementary material is also to be found in the collections of authentic Traditions concerning the sayings and doings of Muhammad himself.)

The Holy Qur"an (Koran) is the collection of the revelations given through Muhammad. It is the fundamental source of, and final authority for, Muslim belief and practice. It relates this third, Muhammadan, Revelation to the Primitive Semitic and to the Jewish, which preceded it. Its teachings represent , the natural completion of those of the two earlier Dispensations.

If we are to understand the Hebrew Scriptures and the Holy Qur"an, we must distinguish carefully between these three stages or Dispensations in the history of the Religion of the Prophets. We must learn the purpose and the function of each for the Semitic peoples themselves. We must see each in relation to the whole of humanity-for these were given to the Semites both as mercies from God and as trusts for all of mankind It is this universal significance of each of them that gives, for mankind at large, a more - than - historical interest and value to the Hebrew and the Arabic Scriptures. Such knowledge, moveover, is basic for an insight into the Divine Plan for mankind as it is revealed in human history.

From Abraham Through Moses to Muhammad.

The outstanding prophet of the first, or Primitive Semitic, Revelation is Abraham (peace be on him!) A remarkably clear picture of this man, so well described as "the Friend of God." may be obtained from the details about his personality and his time given in the Hebrew Scriptures and the Holy Qur"an ..As the reward for his faithfulness, Abraham was allowed to become the founder of two great peoples dedicated to the trust of spiritual leadership of humanity. From his son Isaac are descended the Hebrews; from Ishmael, his first-born, the Arabs....Abraham is both the model of this Dispensation and the common ancestor of the two nations through whom the knowledge of the One God was given to the world.

The founder of the second, or Hebrew, Revelation is Moses (peace be on him!). He it was who formed the tribes descended from Abraham through his son Isaac into a nation and who brought this new people into a covenant relationship with the Lord....This new nation, Israel, was designed to be a source of many outstanding spiritual pioneers, unto God "a kingdom of priests and an holy nation" (Exodus 19:6). Its purpose was to preserve the knowledge of the True God and to be His witness on earth. "Ye are My witnesses, saith the Lord, and My servant whom I have chosen. .. I, even I, am the Lord; and beside Me there is no saviour .. Therefore ye are My witnesses, saith the Lord, and I am God" (Isaiah 43:10-12)...The Hebrew (or Mosaic) Law was designed to supplement the Covenant of Sinai between God and the Children of Israel. It ordered their life in conformity with Godly practices, separated them from foreign peoples, and gave scope to their own strong psychological distinctiveness. It was never intended for non-Israelites. Its basis did not lie in a natural relationship between God and Man but in the covenant relationship between God and Israel. Israel was set apart to be God's witness, not His missionary.

The Prophet of the final Revelation is Muhammad (the peace and blessings of God be on him!) He it was who brought the knowledge of God to the descendants of Abraham through his first-born son, Ishmael.

.. Almost twenty centuries previously Moses had announced that a prophet of his own stature would arise among the Arabs, the brethren of Israel, and had instructed the Hebrews to hearken to him. "A prophet will the Lord thy God raise up unto thee, from the midst of thee, of they brethren, like unto me; unto him you shall hearken" (Deuteronomy 18:15). In order to emphasise the prophecy, Moses at once gives a direct quotation of the words of the Lord: "I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren like unto thee; and I will put My words in his mouth and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him" (18:18). And, as the Jews proclaim in the Seventh Article of the "Thirteen Principles of the Faith" formulated by Maimonides—"I believe with perfect faith that .. Moses, our teacher ..was the chief of the prophets, both of those that preceded and of those that followed him"—this prophecy has never been applied by the Jews to one of their own nation.

...As Moses, in opening the Hebrew Dispensation, had proclaimed the advent of a prophet among the Arabs; so Jesus, at the close of this Dispensation, announced the coming of a prophet who was to seal the prophetic line by guiding men into all truth. "And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever" (John 14:16). "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will show you things to come. He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall show it unto you" (John 16:14—14) Indeed, in agreement with the resemblance between the meaning of the Greek word "Paraclete" and that of the Arabic name "Ahmad" (which is a form of the name "Muhammad"), we read the following in the Holy Qur"an. " Jesus, the son of Mary, said: O children of Israel! surely I am the messenger of God to you, confirming that which is before me of the Torah and giving the good news of a messenger who will come after me, his name being Ahmad." (61:6.)

Thus we see that the name Islam carries with it deep, rich, historical associations. It recalls the long history of Semitic prophecy and suggests the continuity in fundamental teachings represented in this long story. It associates the Prophet of Arabia with his many illustrious predecessors, to their honour and to his. It emphasises the great antiquity of the religion of which Muhammad (the peace and blessings of God be on him!) was the last and the greatest teacher.

In its simple way, it stresses the teachings of the Holy Qur"an as a continuation of those of the early Semitic prophets and as a development of those of the spiritual leaders of the ancient Hebrews.

Giving the Jews' Treasure to The World

How, then, did the Prophet develop the teachings of the Jews?

First, he presented the heart and core of Judaism—the underlying essentials—apart from later accretions and emphases. He rediscovered the original purity and simplicity of Judaism, the timeless essentials that Moses had attempted to preserve through his leadership in the establishment of the Hebrew religion.

Secondly, he universalised the content of the teachings of the Jews by cutting out those that are particularistic — of value, meaning, and significance for the Jews only—and by highlighting those of universal significance.

Thirdly, he preached a universal teaching of his message. He was not only the last of the Semitic prophets: he was also the first and only one to proclaim a message for non-Semitic peoples, for all of mankind.)thus it is that contemptuous reference to non-Semites are so noticeably absent in the Holy Qur"an. Compare with Matthew 7:6, 15:24; and Mark 7:25-30.)

Whereas the Hebrews had considered themselves "the salt of the earth" (Matt. 5:13) and "the light of the world" (5:14), the Arabs were given the message of Islam as a missionary trust as well as as a mercy from God. ("And We have not sent thee (O Muhammad!) save as a mercy to (all) the nations" (21:107). This, and similar Qur'anic statements, should be compared with the attitude of Jesus as expressed, for example, in the Sermon on the Mount. The Jewish attitude toward missionary activities finds an excellent expression, as well as a complete endorsement, on the part of Jesus in Matthew 5:15-16. Similarly, the Jewish attitude towards the Mosaic Law is treated in a Jewish-Orthodox fashion in Matthew 5:17-19. In fact, the condemnation of the Pharisees in the next verse is especially interesting in view of the fact that this school was marked by its missionary zeal!)

As Moses had predicted, a Prophet "like unto him" arose among the Arabs almost twenty centuries after his own day. To this Prophet was given the task of preaching the heart - teachings of the Hebrew religion to humanity—of giving the Jews' treasure to all men—as a result of this process of simplification and universalisation. As Moses had saved the message of Islam for mankind by giving it a national (Hebrew) form, so Muhammad (the peace and blessings of God be on him!) made it the common property of humanity by entrusting it to his fellow Arabs. Thus was Moses vindicated by the Prophet "like unto him" "from the midst of the brethren" of the Children of Israel.

RE-ESTABLISHING THE THE ORIGINAL RELIGION OF MANKIND

How, then, did the Prophet Muhammad continue the Islam of ancient days?

First, he re-established it. He became its most recent teacher as well as its formost exponent. His own spiritual experience reproduced that of his people: there can be no other explanation of the close relationship between his teachings and the Semitic type of spiritual experience. Equally profound is the psychological fact that his experience was complete in its pattern: thus was he able to avoid the over-and under-emphasis of the Jewish teachings of his day. This is the explanation of the fact that Islam, as expounded in the Holy Qur'an. is a full complete faith—which is not usually true of a religion. As we have seen above in our analysis of the name Islam as a summary of the whole religion, the structure of this faith is complete while at the same time monumentally simple and clear. In all three categories—as way, as truth, and as life—it impresses ordinary mortals with its helpful simplicity as much as it does profound thinkers with its phenomenal intuitions.

The completeness of the religion of the Holy Qur"an must be recognised as the counterpart of the completeness of the spiritual experience of the Prophet himself. It was thus inevitable that he should reconstruct the Islam of antiquity to be witnessed both in the ancient writings of the Jews and in the traditions and the subconscious mind of the Arabian nation. A person who has had the experience for himself will readily recognize the authenticity of the historical narratives embodied in the Qur"an. Their psychological truthfulness supports the validity of the ancient form of Islam described in both the Hebrew and the Arabic Scriptures. Moreover, the Prophet who could thus reconstruct this partial revelation of antiquity would alone be able to make this faith complete and perfect in its principles.

Secondly, he made it complete in its fundamental teachings. He made it suitable for a complex society, as Primitive Islam had been essentially a religion designed for a nomadic one and was, in fact, a reaction historically to the evils of a wealth-and-power civilisation far to the east of Arabia. In this way, the Prophet laid the foundation for the magnificent Arabic civilisation that captivated the minds and the hearts, as well as the souls of cultivated peoples in the centuries immediately following his own lifetime. One of the primary causes of this flowering of human genius lies in the fact that the religion of the Holy Qur"an teaches a simple, yet complete, view of life that lends itself readily to systematic, scientific, disciplined cultural expression. It is no exaggeration to say that the Prophet was a great philosopher or a brilliant lawyer in the sense that his work laid the foundations of the whole cultural pattern that emerged in the Muslim world and that provided the bridge between the Ancient Grecian civilisation and that of the modern period in the North and West of Europe. Moreover, the scientific research of our own day has not shaken the fundamental beliefs and basic tenets of the pure Qur"anic Islam, that understanding of, and emphasis on, the twin principles of unity and universality in nature and in life upon the basis of which the world culture of the future can alone be successfully established. To the degree that our age is groping for world-mindedness, it is recognising, even though unconsciously, that spirit of unity-universality that permeates the Islam of the Holy Qur"an.

Even in the strivings of secular-minded modern-minded persons seeking to save themselves from the punishments of their own narrow- and self-mindedness by grasping at rays of insubstantial "one-world" dreams, the Muslim sees a tribute to the work of the Prophet in completing and perfecting Islam. "This day have I made perfect for you your religion, and completed My blessings upon you, and chosen for you Islam as a religion" (Holy Qur"an 5:3).

By restoring and completing Islam, Muhammad (the Peace and blessings of God be on him!) became "the seal of the prophets" in history as well as in theology. By re-establishing the original religion of mankind, he established the final religion of mankind.

And so the ancient promise to Abraham was fulfilled "And i thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed..." (Genesis 22:18).

It Depends on You

The only word that is rich, full, and broad enough to describe the Religion of the Prophets is the Arabic term, Islam. Fortunate, indeed, is the faith to have such a deeply significant name, for all the truths of Islam have been derived from the experience of highly spiritual men who have found life more abundant through "Islam" (that is, through the resignation of their own wills to the will and judgment of God).

Islam is a prophet's cry, challenging each one of us to submit himself to the Absolute and to strive in His path—the way leading to the joy, happiness, and peace with which God blesses those who live in conformity with the beauty of life itself. It defies the short-sighted and the self-seeking by insisting that that alone is constructive, lasting, fully satisfying, and truly meaningful which is in harmony with the purposeful, law-regulated character of nature and with the nature, needs and necessities of man. "The nature made by God in which He had made all men—that is the right religion" (30:30).

Islam satisfied the need of the creature for integration in the larger pattern of life itself: it knows that the personality can find the fullest development and the richest expression only through such God-integration. It recognises the physical, intellectual, and spiritual longings of mankind as superbly beautiful and supremely meaningful as they lead to legitimate individual and social development and expression; but it warns and rewarns that they are the source of the greatest danger to mankind if they are allowed to be turned to unnatural, perverted ends by rebellious persons or organizations. It avoids the false position, the blind end, of all those who try to persuade themselves that humanity alone is a sufficient interest and that "humanism" is a satisfying faith, for it knows that humanity is integrally a part of nature herself and cannot be viewed reasonably apart from the rest of God's creation. It does not join in the hunt of all sorts of "liberals" and "cultists" for cure-alls and "easy ways out." It knows that the path is as difficult as the goal is sure.

"The good life"—the life of self-discovery and self-fulfillment—is not cheap. It is very costly, indeed, in terms of those habits and attitudes so dear to the natural man.

Only those who are willing to pay the price are allowed to travel the pathway of resignation leading to peace. "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matthew 7:13-14).

He who resigns himself to God and strives in His way follows in the footsteps of the prophets who went before him along the path to true happiness and peace.

For the Muslim, all this, and much more, is in the name Islam.

What's in the name Islam for you?...That depends on you.

The Boy Who Was Born To Change the World

By Cassim Isma'il Colin Evans

NAMING THE BABY

The Book from God (the Qur'an, which means "Reading," "Proclamation," "Preaching"), begins with the prayer that every Muslim says many times a day. This is contained in the first chapter called "The Opening." Now there are three words you repeat whenever you say this prayer; they may remind you of three important names The prayer proper begins with the word "al-hamdu," that is to say, "the praise." Another grammatical form of the same word is "Muhammad," "the praised one." After declaring the praise of God, this prayer goes on to define the duty of man, His servant: "Thee do we serve," using the Arabic root-word 'abd, meaning to serve. It is this word which forms part of so many Muslim names. Abdullah—"Servant of God" is one of these. There is also another word which is not part of the actual text of this chapter of the Qur'an but is said at the end of the prayer to confirm what has been expressed: aamin, and is the same word as the Hebrew "amen," used in English. This word is derived from a root-word meaning "ture, faithful, reliable." From this self-same root-word comes the name Aamina, "the truthful woman."

'Abdullah—a man who serves God, and Aamina—a woman who is faithful and true, were the parents of Muhammad — the man who is praised. He was God's final messenger to all mankind (God's blessing be on him!). It is duty, piety, the service of our Creator, which makes truth, honesty or sincerity, fruitful and productive of real merit. When "Serving God" joins with "Truth," the result is the only kind of "praise and glory" that can have any value. Was it just by chance that "Praised" was the child of "Servant of God" and "Truth"? I hardly think one can call it "chance."

Everything that exists is part of one thing that makes all its parts fit together. Our ways of thinking and feeling, our minds, our bodies, the most distant stars, are all parts of the one thing. They are parts of the universe. which is an expression of the thoughts of God. "Surely Islam is the religion of God," says the Qur'an. For "Islam" means partly, the bringing of all into harmony, of everything into tune with everything else. It is complete and real peace that is not merely the fact of not fighting, but that is also the Divine awareness that everything fits properly into the whole scheme of things. One of the sayings reported from the boy we are discussing, when he had grown up to be "God's Messenger" (God's blessing be on him!) is that "a Muslim is one of whom nobody is afraid." In other words, a Muslim is one who is not at cross-purposes with any other being, but a harmonious part of the entire order of the universe. And, so long as a human being keeps "in tune" with God and the rest of God's creation, the things he says and does and thinks will fit in perfectly with the great truths that are only going to be known later on. This our own limited knowledge cannot see at the time. If we are really in tune with the universe and its Creator, there must be a kind of influence that means more than we can guess and that makes it possible that names are the right names.

The coming of God's last messenger to the whole world had been planned long, long before he was born. We may suppose that the parents and grandparents and ancestors from whom he was descended were part of that plan. God plans so that everything, including man himself, develops and progresses to the final state of perfection which is the aim of the great Plan. A Messenger of God must be in as complete harmony as is possible for the limitations of human nature — with God. We may suppose that this is prepared for in advance. We may assume that the parents from whom his personality and character are partly inherited will have been, in turn, through inheritance from their own ancestors and in other ways, gradually developed towards that harmony. It may not be too fanciful to imagine, then, that it was natural for minds in some degree of harmony with the entire scheme of God to give specially suitable names to the man and woman who were going to be Muhammad's parents, and then to Muhammad himself, even without quite knowing why.

When one of your friends, who has been brought up as a Hindu or a Christian or a Buddhist, becomes a Muslim, he will probably take an Arabic name, one that has been famous among Muslims. This gives him the idea of being a Muslim, and one of the great united brotherhood of Muslims. He does this knowing why he is doing it. But also just possibly, in such a moment of drawing nearer than ever before to a real understanding with God, he is, without knowing it, inspired to choose a name for which there will prove to be some extra reason, not yet known to him or those who chose his name for him.

And thus, perhaps, it happened, that the Prophet's mother was named Aamina—"Truth", and his father 'abdullah—"God's Servant", and himself Muhammad —"Praised" —the deserver of merit derived from Truth combined with the Service of God.

There is a story which may or may not be historically true. It is said that Muhammad's grandfather, the last really wealthy man of his tribe, which had once owned the well where God saved the life of Abraham's son Ishmael, made a vow to sacrifice a son if God gave him twelve sons. In those days of ignorance one did not know better. He thought what was dearest and nearest to him should be sacrificed by him. Thus when about to sacrifice his son, the story goes, a voice from Heaven forbade him. 'Abdullah grew up and married Aamina.

In a year about 1380 years ago, about the year 570 of the Christian calendar, which reckons from the birth of an earlier Messenger of God, Jesus (on whom be peace and God's blessing!), the King of Abyssinia sent a great army with elephants to attack Mecca. The Ka'ba, according to a legend that grew up later, was about to be destroyed by this army. It was a place hallowed by the memory of how Abraham there worshipped God. This is the same place which was defiled later by the worship of many false gods, but hallowed again when Muhammad, as God's messenger, destroyed the idols and made the Ka'ba the centre of Islam. The legend suggests that a miracle saved the Ka'ba from the 'Abyssinian army, and that an elephant knelt there in reverence. That year is called the Year of the Elephants.

And in that year, Aamina, widow now of 'Abdullah who had died with his son still unborn, gave birth to the "Boy who was to change the world." And he was given the name Muhammad.

Since then, the outward sign of harmony with God and His universe has been the declaration:

"I declare that there is none Divine but God; I declare that Muhammad is God's messenger."

War Urged on Pork Disease, Infecting Every Sixth Person

By ALBERT DEUTSCH

(EXCERPTS)

If you eat pork, as nearly all Americans in this greatest of pork-consuming nations do, you ought to get fighting mad about one of the most disgraceful food scandals in our history.

It's the fact that every sixth American is infected with trichinosis, a condition resulting from eating raw, undercooked, or inadequately processed pork that contains live trichinae—parasite worms that burrow into the victim's muscle tissue. While the vast majority of trichinae-infected human's suffer the disease in only mild or subclinical forms, trichinosis often produces painful and disabling symptoms and sometimes terminates fatally.

The shocking feature about this disease is that it is easily preventable by simple known methods. It is a national shame that the U. S. A., with all its resources, has been way behind many lesser countries which have successfully controlled trichinosis for decades. One health expert, Dr. M. C. Hall, after a survey showing an "amazingly high frequency of trichinosis" in Americans, concluded that "the United States has the greatest problem of trichinosis in the world."

PROHIBITED FOOD AND INTOXICATING LIQUOR

Tonight I think of the prohibitions of Islam—how few and how salutary! Wine—avoid it—cut it off—touch it not. Simplify your life by the clean sword-stroke cutting out the lurking possibility of evil. Who hath at any time forbidden good fresh grapes, God's mercy to man? But wine, wherein is evil, dally not therewith, saying, "So much is good but beyond that cometh evil." In the drinking of wine the discernment disappeareth easefully. Does not the fancied line between imagined good and evil recede ever with the drinker? Are not some less able to withstand than others? How then shall many, or even few, drink together without evil to some? Excellent indeed is the prohibition: "Drink not wine at all. Take not intoxicants at all." And of other things: "Do not eat pork. Do not eat the flesh of swine." It is not well known and agreed upon all sides that what a man feedeth on maketh him? If he eats much meat or little shall the body not respond accordingly, influencing the life and actions? Who can eat bad food healthfully, or unclean food cleanly? Or who can deny the filthiness of swine or the harmful nature of swine's flesh? Would anyone of intelligence lean over a pigsty in the early morning and then go indoors and enjoy a dish of swine flesh? And would not the thought of acquiring even a few of the propensities of swine horify the delicate damsel to whom beauty is such a valued possession? So I say, shall the habit of the ages still prevail in Europe and custom blind intelligent people to reality? Apparently, Jesus (on whom be peace!) thought swine a suitable habitation for devils. The eating of pork and bacon is not essential to human existance. It is simply a bad habit. Eat of the good things. God has provided.—(Mr. W. B. Pickard, B. A.)

NOTE

In the Bible we learn that those who eat pork and those who eat mice are in same class (Isa. 66: 17).

Dr. E. B. Foote on the Use of Pork

Dr. E. B. Folle of New York in his book "Disease—Its Causes, Prevention and Cure," says on pp. 56-59:

"One of the most common causes of blood impurities is the use of pork. It has been said that things were created for some wise purpose. This is undoubtedly true but hogs were never made to eat. We read that Christ used them to drown devils; they can never be appropriated to a more beneficient use. As an article of diet, pork exerts a most pernicious influence on the blood, overloading it with carbonic acid gas and filling it with serofula. The hog is not a healthy animal. From its birth it is an inveterate gormandizer and to satisfy its eternal cravings for food, everything in the field or gutter, however filthy, finds lodgement in its capacious stomach. It eats filth and wallows in its filth and is itself but a living mass of filth. When, therefore, it is remembered that all our limbs and organs have been picked up from our plates—that our bodies are made up of the things we have eaten—what pork-eater will felicitate himself with the reflection that, according to physiological teachings, he is physically, part hog .."

"In the August, 1937, issue of 'Hygeia,' a publication of The American Medical Association, we learn that 'Swine are responsible for several human afflictions of considerable significance.' Among the various afflictions noted are trichinosis, tuberculosis, both the human and bovine types; undulant fever, the porcine type being especially virulent; anthrax; swine erysipelas, and the pork tapeworm. The facts speak for themselves, no additional comment is necessary."

THE FLESH OF SWINE

By the Late Deputy Surgeon-General C. W. Buchanan Hamilton, R. N.

(EXCERPTS)

In the dealing with the question of food it is of paramount importance that one should know the exact nature of the food and also what its microscopial and chemical analysis yields. From the nature of the food with which we are concerned, namely, the flesh of swine, we know that we are dealing with an animal which contains muscle, and therefore protein fats. The first thought would suggest that with a little vegetable (carbohydrates) a perfect meal ought to result, but such is not the case. A microscopial and chemical examination proves conclusively that the flesh of swine is harmful to the human body, and that when Al-Quran says we must not eat the flesh of swine it intends to save us from many a disease which would not only shorten our life but make the end of our stay on this earth very miserable.....

My chief aim in writing this article is not so much to give information to those who do not know why swine is forbidden to Muslims, as to eradicate the erroneous idea which prevails among so many learned men, Christian and others. . . .all these stories are false and have no foundation whatsoever. No law laid down in our Book, the Quran, can be localized to any particular country. Al-Islam is universal, and as such its laws must be obeyed wherever one may be whether the place is hot or cold.

Now, therefore, when you see how your Lord has pointed out to you a harmful practice, which you were ignorant of, I would ask you especially to keep in your mind that great verse and act upon it:

"Say: I do not find in that which has been revealed to me anything forbidden for an eater to eat of except that it what has died of itself, or blood poured forth, or flesh of swine —for that surely is unclean— or that which is a transgression, other than the name of Allah having been invoked on it; but whoever is driven to necessity not desiring nor exceeding the limit, than surely your Lord is Forgiving, Merciful."

AFFECTING MORALS

O men! eat the lawful and good things out of what is in the earth, and do not follow the footsteps of the devil; surely he is your open enemy.—(The Holy Quran, 2: 168.)

....by adding the injunction, do not follow the footsteps of the devil the real object of the prohibition is made plain. The Holy Quran recognizes some sort of relation between the physical and the spiritual conditions of man. There is not the least doubt that food plays an important part in the formation of character, and the heart and the brain powers are clearly affected by the quality of food. The same law is seen working in the whole of the animal kingdom. As the Holy Quran is meant for all stages of the development of human society, it contains rules and regulations for the betterment of the physical as well as the moral and the spiritual conditions of man.

RE-INVESTIGATING THEOLOGY

By Mr. Carl Coffman

I am a former Protestant minister, who first realized the theological inadequacy of the denomination of which I was a member, and who, in the course of reinvestigating my Christian theology, had my attention called to the claims of Isalm.

I am beginning to rethink my religion from the ground up, and I would very much appreciate your sending me such literature as you would believe might be helpful to me in finding the God's will.

I am especially desirous of securing the edition with short notes and introduction, and without Arabic text, of Muhammad Ali's Translation of the Holy Quran. Could you suggest where I obtain a copy?

All literature and also the copy of the Quran, it would be helpful if I could secure in duplicate, inasmuch as I have a friend in a similar situation religiously as myself, who is equally earnest to know the truth and to follow it."

THE LIGHT OF ISLAM

The light of Islam will soon shine (God-willing) in all the corners of the western world. The present is the time which will see the fulfillment of the following prophecy of the Holy Prophet:

"My Lord contracted the earth for me (i. e. showed me a plan of it), so that I saw its Eastern lands and its Western lands, and I was told that the Kingdom of my followers will reach the lands which were shown to me."

The Eastern lands are mentioned first in the prophecy, and Islam spread first in the East; the Western lands are mentioned afterwards, and they will also as surely see the light of Islam as they see the light of day.

"The Sun (of Islam) will rise from the West in latter days."

—Prophet Muhammad

Leaves Estate Of $75,000

An estate with a probable value of $75,000 was left by Miss Nellie McIlviane, Mansfield school teacher, who died last Monday, an application filed in probate court for the appointment of an administrator disclosed today. There was no will, but a search to determine if one exists is continuing.

Appointed as administrator was a cousin of the deceased woman. The cousin is John H. Cheshire, of Lakewood, Ohio. Named in the application as next of kin were 16 cousins and an uncle. There were none from the Mansfield area. However a supplemental list is to be filed as soon as other next of kin are determined.

Attorney J. H. Gongwer, who filed the application, said that a determination as to division of the estate cannot be made until a family tree is made up and all the next of kin are determined.

The application placed the probable value of personal property at $25,000 and of real estate at $50,000.

Miss McIlviane taught at John Simpson junior high school for six years and in Mansfield schools for 32 years.

Warm-Cold Winter Threat to Peach Crop, Apples Seem Safe

Peaches may come rather expensive to the consumer this year if the winter continues to alternately freeze and thaw. So say the local peach growers.

Esley Cleckner, who has about 3,000 peach trees on his farm on U. S. Route 30-E, reports that two-thirds of his peach buds were frozen out last month. He explained that peaches begin their formation in the fall of the year and when winters are mild they continue development throughout the winter, but when extremely cold weather hits the trees many advanced buds are destroyed.

Cleckner gave some hope to the situation when he added that the number of potential peaches budded last fall was greater than usual, "and if we don't have too many frosts this spring, we may have some peaches, yet."

The orchardist at the Mansfield Reformatory, J. C. Miller, and George Barnhill, apple-peach raiser on Ontario road, had a brighter outlook on the local fruit crop.

The two fruit growers, who have mostly apple trees, said there is no indication the apple crop was affected by the sudden change in temperatures. Because of the sheltered position of their peach trees, they also noted that little damage had been done to them by the weather.

Warn Farmers On DDT Usage

WASHINGTON — (INS — The National Agricultural Chemicals association today cautioned farmers against applying DDT direct to dairy animals until further information is available.

NACA said it is continuing research to determine the maximum safe level of DDT in milk and other foodstuffs and on safe methods of application to cattle, barns and forage crops.

Both the Food and Drug administration and the Agriculture department have been interested in finding out the effect of spraying DDT direct on dairy cattle.

Minnesota Celebrates 'Birthday'

100th Territorial Anniversary Cited

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(AP)— Minnesota has on its birthday best today to celebrate its first recognition as part of the United States.

One hundred years ago—on March 3, 1849—a congressional act making Minnesota a territory of the United States was signed by President Polk.

Today is being observed in schools and by community programs as Establishment Day—climax of the territorial centennial year. The year has been proclaimed by Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl as "an occasion worthy of solemn reflection and festive observance by all citizens."

Pageants, plays and tableaux planned for the year will carry spectators back to when the area between the Mississippi and Missouri rivers was a land of Indians, fur traders, missionairies and resolute pioneers.

Settlers of the region, who gathered for the territorial convention at Stillwater—a community just east of where St. Paul was to rise—adopted the name "Minnesota." The word was used by the Dakota Indians to describe the countryside. It has been translated to "the land of sky blue waters."

Centennial observances are recalling how a fur trader, Henry H. Sibley, was chosen to represent the pioneers in the nation's capital and spearhead their request to become affiliated with the United States.

The congressional organic act set northern, eastern and southern boundaries of the territory where they are now for the state of Minnesota, but the territory extended westward to include the present states of North and South Dakota as far as the Missouri river.

Later in 1849, Alexander Ramsey, a Pennsylvanian, arrived in the hamlet of St. Paul on the first Mississippi steamer of the season. On June 1, Ramsey proclaimed the territory organized and four months later the first territorial legislature assembled.

The territory was admitted to statehood in 1858.

Old-Timer In Yukon Territory Finds City Life on Dull Side

By GEORGE TUCKER
(For Hal Boyle Who Is On Vacation)

Tom Carson knows Klondike history, several hundred funny stories, and whisky.

He learned these the hard way, at first hand.

When he was younger, he landed a raft near Dawson City, Yukon territory and started digging.

"We wore beards to keep our faces from freezing. Eggs were two bucks apiece."

That was in 1899, a year after the Klondike was discovered.

Today, 50 years later, Tom Carson is back in New York—and sorry for it.

"I came east to visit my niece," he said. "She's a fine woman—but I ought never to have come."

"They mean well," he went on, "but their idea of a big night is to turn on the radio, mix a pitcher of lemonade, and go to bed. I couldn't stand it.

"I slipped away without telling anybody where I was going. I came here, and found a wonderful bar, and spent four days there. I cashed all my travelers checks and wound up busted. Then I called Ida—that's my niece—and asked her to wire me some money. She said she wouldn't do it. She said I'd spend it all and they'd never see me until I was busted. But she's driving down with her husband to pick me up

For this reason, Carson said, he just had to have a small loan until they got here. "To get a meal, and tidy up," he said.

"If you'll let me have it," he went on, "you can have it back first thing in the morning. I'll put it in an evelope and slip it under this door, and you'll find it here."

★

Carson, at 75, is a bird-like little man whose shirt hangs on him like blistered wallpaper. His adams apple flutters like a stricken dove. On and on his voice runs, like Tennyson's brook, until it drowns you in a wave of anecdotes, dates, names and places.

"I saw the fight that Rex Beach made famous in his novel, 'The Spoilers.' I lost my gear on Chilkoot Pass... I knew Klondike Kate .."

After reaching the Klondike, Carson dug gold until his hands blistered. While waiting for the blisters to heal he visited the M & M saloon. There he met Jack London, Tex Rickard, Robert W. Service and so many other interesting people that he abandoned prospecting and drank his way through 50 years of insolvency, warm in the memory of his celebrated friends.

"Rex Beach was a bar slapper," Carson recalled. "If he got an idea while standing at the bar he'd slap it so hard you could hear the bar crack. Then he would bound upstairs—he had a room there—and soon his typewriter would be leaping and jumping. Sometimes he would come back and say, 'I had an idea It didn't work. Let's have another drink.'

"Jack London was a wonderful fellow, but he quit drinking and became respectable. Even after Jack left the country he used to send money back to the boys, saying, 'I'm not a drinking man—but have one on me.'

"It was Wilson Mizner who correctly defined the code of the north. He said you could leave your sweetheart and your money for a month and they'd be there when you got back. But a bottle disappeared in five minutes.

"After Klondike Kate came to the gold fields, life throbbed a little sweeter. We never learned how much gold she sent back to the states."

After the gold camps dried up and the big cities came, Tom Carson settled in Nome. The bars were good. The years passed. Then, one day, came that unaccountable decision to visit his niece.

I know what you're thinking. You're wondering if Tom Carson came back, and slipped that envelope under the door.

Yes, he did.

Clear Fork Unit Costs $128,400

Purchase of Vehicles OK'd

City council last night authorized Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison to advertise for bids for building the low-lift Clear Fork pumping station. The sum of $128,400 was earmarked for the project.

The low-lift pumping station is the second step of the third and final phase of the Clear Fork waterworks project. Contract on the first part of Phase 3—construction of a mile-and-a-quarter raw water pipeline—has been awarded to the Christopher Construction company of Columbus.

Phase 3 also includes a filtration plant at the site of the high-lift pumping station.

Phase 1 of the project, the dam itself, has been completed.

Items of Phase 2 are either completed or under construction. These include the high-lift pumping station and the 24-inch pipeline from the station to the Woodland rservoir.

SETS UP FUNDS

For the main pumping station of the project, Garrison was authorized to advertise for bids for the installation of pumps, pipes, valves and miscellaneous materials. A fund of $12,100 was set up for this.

Garrison was given the green light to ask for bids for a new roof on the City building garage and fire station.

Council instructed Garrison in other ordinances to advertise for bids for the purchase of two police cruisers, a new car for his own use, and two trucks for the street department.

One of the street department trucks will be a one-and-one-half-ton vehicle and the other a one-ton truck to be used by the paint department.

Garrison was authorized to ask for sealed bids for a parcel of land on Bowman street road, containing nine-tenths of an acre.

Council Votes Tribute To Memory of Lt. Taylor

A tribute to Lt. William J. Taylor, who was shot and fatally injured in the line of duty, was entered on city council's journal last night.

Pointing out that the city and its citizens "have lost a valiant and courageous member of the police department and that council desires to record on its journal a memorial of loving memory and respect for the life which he lived as a citizen of our community," council resolved:

"That Lt. William J. Taylor was an able, valiant and courageous policeman.

"That he rendered his full measure of devotion to his God, his country, and to the citizens of the community in which he lived.

"That his memory will be forever cherished as a loving husband, a proud father, an able soldier and a true gentleman.

"That his true and upright life shall remain in the hearts of those who knew and loved him and his death in the line of duty shall remain forever a shining example of strength and courage to every American citizen."

Besides ordering that a copy of the resolution go on the journal, council directed that a copy be transmitted to members of Lt. Taylor's family.

Eight Fined For Traffic Violations

Speeders Top List In Court

Eight persons appeared before Judge H. H. Schettler in municipal traffic court yesterday afternoon, four on charges of exceeding speed limits. Six entered pleas of guilty and two were found guilty.

Laurel C. Alt, 196 Bennett street, Mansfield, and Mrs. Norma Y. Tabor, Mt. Vernon R. D. 2, entered pleas of guilty to speeding on Mansfield city streets and were fined $15 and costs each.

Arrested by state highway patrolmen for exceeding the speed limit on State Route 13, Clark Daily, Lexington, pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Harold Pearl, Checklowarga, N. Y. was found guilty of speeding on U. S. Route 42 and was fined $10 and costs.

Henry Morgenstern, Bellville R D. 1, was found guilty of failing to yield the right-of-way at the intersection of Franklin avenue and Second street and was given a fine of $10 and costs. Morgenstern's vehicle was involved in a collision with one owned by Leonard T. Wisdom, 295 Orange street, Mansfield.

Another motorist, whose automobile was involved in an accident, was John Gross, 235 Schmitt court, Mansfield. He pleaded guilty to a charge of unsafe operation and was fined $15 and costs. His automobile struck a truck owned by the Commercial Motor Freight company and then crashed into the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Snider, 73 East First street.

For having insufficient brakes on his automobile Robert C. Vessey, 25 Arnold drive, Mansfield, was fined $5 and costs when he entered a plea of guilty to the charge.

Thomas D. Edwards, 589 Grant street, Mansfield, was fined $6 and costs, on six parking violations.

You'll Live Longer, But—

Heart, Venereal Disease Toll Mounts

By ROBERT SCHWEITZ

We all die sooner or later, but chances are it will be later according to city-county health commissioner Dr. Harry Wain's annual report and other statistics.

Wain says modern medicine is changing the frontiers of health and is pushing back death. This statement is borne out by the figures on deaths in Ohio in 1889. Of the 49,844 deaths that year, 714 persons died of measles and 555 of whooping cough, illnesses that are seldom fatal now days, and attack chiefly younger persons.

Heart and circulatory system diseases accounted for more than 44 per cent of Richland county deaths last year. These are chronic degenerative diseases, diseases of old age.

Compared with 1900 in which the chief killers were tuberculosis, pneumonia, and diarrhea, which caused 51 per cent of the deaths combined, the figures prove that we have a better chance to live longer now than several decades ago.

But, Dr. Wain warns we mustn't let down the barriers even if we have conquered many of the infectious diseases and have concentrated on diseases of later life.

He points out that venereal disease control is still a major health problem. A total of 767 persons in Richland county were admitted to service for venereal diseases in 1948 as compared with 340 in 1943. Syphilis accounted for more than half of these.

Though we have no epidemics of cholera, yellow fever, typhoid, and small pox as we used to we still haven't found the answer to polio and we have had 675 new cases of tuberculosis reported in the county last year.

On the national scale, heart diseases have steadily increased in rate of deaths since the beginning of the century.

Going only as far back as 1918 the statistics show that in that year 170 persons per 100,000 died of heart disease, in 1928 208 persons, and in 1946 306 persons. In Mansfield last year the rate was still higher, 311.5 per 100,000.

This means that medicine has found the way to make us live longer, and now is facing the problem of curing the diseases of old age.

Searchers Discover Missing Man's Body

PORTSMOUTH — (INS) — Scioto county Coroner W. A. Quinn ruled today that a 38-year-old Ohio furnace veteran found lying in a field near Portsmouth died of exposure.

The body of Edward Stevens was found yesterday by a searching party sent out when the man disappeared Monday night.

RELIEF ROLES CLIMBING

RAVENNA—(AP)—Portage county's relief roles have jumped from 114 last Oct. 1 to 243, county officials reported yesterday.

County Purchases Office Equipment

County commissioners have purchased a steel desk, a five-drawer legal file cabinet, a five-drawer letter file cabinet, three shelves for the storage cabinet, and indexing for the file cabinets, trading in old equipment.

The purchases, made from the Charles Ritter company, totaled $212.75. That was the difference between the price of $356.75 for the new equipment and the $154 allowance of the old equipment traded in.

Commissioners said they had contacted two other firms as to quotations for buying new office furniture and found that the Ritter company was able to provide them immediately with all the furniture they required.

ADMITS TWO HOLDUPS

CLEVELAND —(AP)— A Warren man yesterday admitted robbing two Atlantic and Pacific chain stores in Youngstown of $1,700 last year, Deputy Inspector James MacArthur announced.

Court Frees Two Robbery Suspects

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Two Columbus men were free today after being acquitted of being the "bantam car" bandits who held up and terrorized a Bexley surgeon and his wife.

Witness-supported alibis wound up defense testimony and the jury closeted itself for four and a half hours, returning with a verdict of "not guilty."

Bing Officials Confer In City

Sixteen executives of the 58 year old Bing Furniture company met in Mansfield yesterday with the company's president Louis S. Bing, jr. to discuss the firm's 1948 record and the new year's plans.

Bing said the firm feels encouraged about the prospects of the home furnishing business because of the continuing building of low priced homes and because his firm has been able to get a satisfactory supply of home furnishings.

He said he always has been pleased with his company's business in Mansfield because of "satisfactory customer relationships and because the city is a magnet for all surrounding small towns and a rich farming area."

EXCHANGE PW'S—Back in the Jewish section of Jerusalem are 150 Israeli soldiers, captured nine months ago when the Old City of Jerusalem fell to the Arabs. Interned in a Trans-Jordan prison camp, they were freed under terms of a recent prisoner-of-war exchange agreement between the two countries. The actual exchange took place at Mandelbaum Gate, in a neutral zone established by the United Nations representatives.

Statistics Reveal Drop In Birth Rate

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Births in Ohio last year dropped six per cent below those in 1947, the Office of Vital Statistics reports.

In a report on 1948, the office said Ohio listed 178,825 births as compared with 190,935 in 1947.

The drop occurred despite the fact that the birth total was 12 per cent over comparable 1947 figures in the final three months of 1948

President Truman Faces Full Schedule Of Activities Within Next Few Months

WASHINGTON — (INS) — President Truman is going to be a fast-moving chief executive during the spring and early summer months, while Congress wrestles with the administration's 21-point legislative program.

The President has about a dozen invitations for brief appearances and addresses during the next few weeks.

And, if Congress doesn't make rapid progress on the major items of legislation implementing his election pledges, he may carry out his threat to "stump" the country to prod the house and senate.

Mr. Truman will leave Washington next Sunday morning to fly to Key West, Fla., for a two-week rest.

While in Florida, the President will fly to Orlando for one day on March 8 to receive a degree from Rollins college and to make a speech.

Returning to Washington on March 19, Mr. Truman will go to Boston on April 1 to address the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and meet again with former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill. The famous British war leader will address the college also.

The President then has two trips scheduled for New York City, a return trip to Boston, and a tentative engagement to attend the annual reunion of his wartime 35th division at Little Rock, Ark., the second week in June.

He will go to New York City on April 10 to attend ceremonies laying the cornerstone for the first United Nations building.

Another New York trip in April, the date of which is yet to be set, will take Mr. Truman to a dinner in honor of Chaim Weizmann, president of Israel.

The President returns to Boston on April 26, to address Boston college and receive another honorary degree in ceremonies taking place that afternoon.

Trapped Miners Warmed By Mules

BENTON, Wis. — (UP) — Fourteen miners told today how they snuggled up to two mules to keep warm while rescuers fought a fire in the mine tipple and finally used an auto wrecker to hoist them to safety.

The men were unhurt but endured intense cold. They were trapped 168 feet underground for eight hours when fire destroyed the hoisting machinery and shed over the saft of the Kittoe company lead and zinc mine early Wednesday.

General Tire Says Income's Lower

AKRON — (UP) — The General Tire & Rubber company reported yesterday its net income for the year ended last Nov. 30 declined to $4,783,617 or $7.43 a common share from $5,872,472, or $9.08 a share in the previous year.

O'Neill said the 1948 profit figure did not include earnings from the company's holdings in the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, of which General owns about 50 per cent, and foreign and other operations. He said these would boost the total profit to about $6 000 000 or approximately $9.39 a share.

Ford to Push Output Boost

DETROIT — (AP) — Ford Motor company went ahead with plans today to step up production of lower-priced models substantially. Output of Lincoln cars, however, will be cut sharply, the company announced.

Executive Vice President Ernest R. Breech said Ford had no intention of following General Motors' lead in cutting prices. He indicated current wages and material costs were too high. G-M announced price reductions ranging from $10 to $150 Friday.

Ford plans to attain a combined total of 109,000 cars and trucks monthly by June, Breech said.

Will Aid Survivors

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Representatives of the 10 fraternities at Kenyon college and from several other schools will meet here tomorrow to begin a campaign to raise funds for students who lost their possessions in the fire which destroyed Old Kenyon Hall Sunday.

Guilty In Slaying

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — A common Pleas jury found Lesley C. Harmon guilty of first-degree manslaughter late Tuesday in connection with the paving-brick killing of Oliver Harris in a parking lot last November.

Meat Prices Continuing To Soar

Trend Follows Second Week

(By Associated Press)

Meat prices continued edging upward this week in many chain stores whose competitive quotations are a sensitive barometer of retail trends across the country.

Sirloin steak, for example, was up 2 to 4 cents a pound in several key cities following last week's advances of 4 to 10 cents.

Pork loin roasts were up 2 to 8 cents. Even lamb, which remained comparatively high when beef and pork dropped sharply last month, was up a few cents a pound from last week.

One notable exception to the general rule was Boston, where sirloin which sold at around 75 cents a pound last week was 69 cents yesterday, and pork roasts declined 10 cents to about 55 cents a pound.

Meat buyers said the upward trend was believed to be levelling off. The supply-demand position of meat is more normal this year than at any time since the early war years, they said, and this means consumption—and prices—can be expected to ease off somewhat now that the Lenten season has begun.

CRUEL WORLD!—Robbie Lou Schinske, six months old, of Orlando, Fla., doesn't particularly care for his new bonnet and is telling the world about it.

Lenten foods themselves are more abundant than they've been in years. The Agriculture department said sales of chicken broilers, for example, probably will be greater in the first quarter of this year than ever before.

Prices of these choice fowl were up 2 to 4 cents a pound in many chains as lent began, however.

Cheese, eggs and both fresh and frozen fish also are plentiful. Shore dinner fanciers in the northeastern states benefited by bumper supplies of mackerel, cod, sea bass, smelts and fluke because the mild winter allowed almost continuous fishing.

Canned tuna and sardines also are in good supply, although salmon and shad roe are below normal.

Engineers Meet

The Northeastern Ohio division of the Society of Industrial Packaging and Materials Handling Engineers will meet March 16 at the Westinghouse plant in conjunction with the Miami Valley chapter of the parent organization. William B. Keefe, of Mansfield is chairman of the meeting.

Mayer Concern To Incorporate

The Mayer Drug store at Sixth and Main streets has filed papers with the Ohio secretary of state to incorporate the business as the Mayer Drug Store and Medical Supply company.

Frank J. Mayer, Peter J. Mayer, and Kathryn S. Mayer were listed as incorporators.

The application, filed by Atty. Marshall Moore, calls for the issuing of 2,000 shares of common stock with a par value of one dollar and 500 shares of preferred stock at the same value.

The drug company plans to handle both retail and wholesale pharmaceutical trade.

Ontario Bows Out of Class B District Meet

Flu Keeps Warrior Scoring Ace In Bed

By CHARLEY STINE

BUCYRUS—Bellville remained Richland county's only Class B basketball representative after Ontario ran into a streak of hard luck in the Bucyrus district tournament last night.

The Warriors bowed from tourney play by losing, 66-49, to Forest while their No. 1 ball player and high scorer, Howard Sunnucks, was home with the flu. Sunnucks, first string guard on the News-Journal all-county team, had taken sick only yesterday.

The other part of Ontario's bad luck was that it ran head-on into a five-foot-eight forward who made Dead-Eye Dick look like a piker. The boy, Howard Waller by name, southpawed 36 points through the Bucyrus nets to set what is without much doubt a district tourney scoring record.

The second game went to New Riegel by a 66-42 count over Ridgeway. Orthman Frank led New Riegel with 11 goals and two fouls for 24 points.

END FIRST ROUND

First round games in the joust will be completed tonight when Leesville goes against Sandusky St. Mary's at 7:30 and Bellville battles undefeated Salem at 8:45.

The winner of the Bellville game will be rated the tourney favorite since Salem has won 23 straight ball games in copping the Wyandot county championship. Salem has two six-footers in its lineup including a potential all-state center, Gene Binau, who is described by his coach, Paul Shafer, as being a "very good pivot man."

With Paul Farst starting in place of Sunnucks, Ontario played things pretty well even in the first quarter last night, but Waller refused to miss and flipped in 12 points, to put his team ahead, 19-8. He scored four of Forest's first five points before Ontario was able to write on the scoreboard.

EVEN IN SECOND

Both teams scored 14 points in the second period and Ontario would have done better had it not been for a weakness in bringing the ball up the floor. At one time Forest intercepted for three straight buckets before the Warriors got the ball over the ten-second line. Forest led at the half, 33-22.

The complexion of the game changed entirely for the first few minutes of the second half. Carl Duffner opened scoring by batting in an Ontario rebound, Don Terman and Richie Hunt hit on foul shots and Jack Perry scored from the kehole to bring the Warriors within five points, 33-28.

Then the magic of Waller's left-hand push-shot began to function again. He connected on a free throw, Terman counted a rebound for Ontario and then Forest scored 13 straight points. It led 47-30 going into the last period and held that margin.

Four Teams Sign For Tournament

NEW YORK — (UP) — Western Kentucky's Hilltoppers, led by their famed towel-tossing coach, Ed. Diddle, today were booked for their fourth appearance in the national invitational tournament starting March 12 at Madison Square Garden.

The Hilltoppers and Bradley University's Braves became the third and fourth teams to accept bids for the annual post-season shindig yesterday. Defending champion St. Louis University and Kentucky accepted invitations earlier this week.

Big 9 Cinder Path Carnival On Tomorrow

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., — (INS)—Track and field may lose some of its lustre in a non-olympic year, but there'll be no lack of brilliance tomorrow and Saturday when the big nine's best gather at Champaign to decide their 39th annual indoor championships.

A field of more than 200 athletes is entered, with preliminaries in six events to be held at the Illinois armory tomorrow night and all finals getting under way at 1 p. m. Saturday afternoon.

The Buckeyes of Ohio State are defending champions, having won the crown last year in a surprise victory over Illinois, but their chances of retaining the team title will be threatened not only by the Illini but by Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota as well.

One men — decathlon aspirant Lloyd Duff — scored 16 of Ohio's 43 victory points last year, but Duff has not been up to standard since the injury which kept him from the olympic trials last summer.

So far as individual performances this year are concerned, the spotlight will be on skinny, bespectacled Don Gehrmann of Wisconsin, the nation's best distance runner as of this date.

DiMaggio Is Okay, Heads Back to Yank Drill Camp

NEW YORK—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio and his aching heel headed back to the New York Yankees' training camp today after a quick visit to his Baltimore doctor.

The verdict: He's okay. No medical attention required.

The right heel, from which a bone spur was removed last fall, flared up after the Yankee Clipper's first workout Tuesday. Taking no chances with their star, the Yankees sent him winging back to George Bennett.

Les Fleming, Pittsburgh infielder, signed his contract. All of the Pirates now have agreed to terms. Eddie Stanky agreed to the Boston Braves' offer leaving the National league champions with four on the unsatisfied list. Outfielder Pete Reiser, who moved from Brpoklyn to the Boston Braves during the winter, provided a fancy slugging exhibition at Bradenton, Fla., where one of his drives carried 380 feet. . . Slugger Ralph Kiner was still among the missing in the Pittsburgh camp at San Bernardino, Calif., although he has signed his contract. . . Pitcher Harry Gumbert and the Cincinnati Reds were still disagreeing on terms. Hank Sauer, the Reds' home run hitter, took his first workout yesterday.

★

Cecil (Tex) Hughson, who almost quit baseball for good last year because of a "dead" arm, loomed today as the answer to the Boston Red Sox prayers for a 20-game winner in 1949.

Hughson, who saw his 20-victory total of 1946 shrink to measly triumphs last year, gave his pitching arm a severe test yesterday. He came through with flying colors.

The right hander from San Marcus, Tex., pitched batting practice vigorously for 30 minutes. After the workout he said his arm hadn't bothered him a bit.

★

A matter of $5,000 today apparently stood between the Cincinnati Reds and a completely signed roster of baseball players.

Holdout Harry Gumbert, right-handed relief pitcher, talked yesterday with President Warren Giles but they failed to reach an agreement. Gumbert is reported to be seeking a $20,000 salary while the Reds' offer is for $15,000.
